The Popular Vote.

According to the agere ate unofficial reurns there were 14,100,000 votes cast for resident at the recent election for the three ending candidates, Cleveland, Harrison and Weaver. The latter polled 850,000 votes and carried 23 electoral college votes. The Harrison and Cleveland votes stand: Cleveand, 6,750,000; Harrison, 6,500,000, a differnce in Cleveland's favor of 250,000. When Mr. Cleveland was elected President eight years ago be had only 62,673 more than Mr. Blaine, and in 1888 the popular vote for the candidates atood: Harrison, 5,449,216; Seveland, 5 538 233, a difference in favor of Seveland of 95,017, or 35,344 larger than in
