NOT EVEN A JOLLIFICATION MEETING,

Until It Has Been Decided

Who Gets the Plums Just about eight years ago, on one of the blenkest days of November, the Democracy merset county assembled in this place to celebrate the victory of Cleveland and Hendricks. Faces were seen upon the street of this town that day that had rarely been seen here before and had evidently been atracted by the Jacksonian cry. "To the victors belong the spoils."

They could hardly believe the strange sound of victory that filled their ears. Many of them construed it as a call to office. After spending a large portion of the day in a howling bliggard, circuring for Cleveland, gorging themselves with sections of roast ox. and incidentally promises of "soft snaps" in the government service, they were too full

But the ides of March had hardly waned ere they discovered that there were "too many pine for the bolds," and following this unpleasant discovery came the paralysing announcement that President Cleveland had determined to recognize the Mugwumps who had been instrumental in securing his election and would reward them with a liberel share of the federal patronage.
