A Father's Gratitude

Impels Him to Tell How His Son Was Saved

White Swelling and Serpula Perfectly Cured.

"I do not write this at the request of any one, but because I feel it a duty to humanity, so that others afflicted as my boy was may know where to find relief.
My son was seven years of age when he began to complain of soreness in his right leg. A white swelling soon appeared just below the knee joint, and extended from the knee to the ankle. At the same time he was taken with an attack of fever, which was drawn up at right angles. His leg was swollen, and the muscles so contracted that his leg was drawn up at right angles. He was unable to walk, could not even bear to be handled, and I thought him a confirmed Cripple.
After a time we had the swelling spread between the knee and the ankle, and it would discharge over a pint of pus at times. I decided to take him to Cincinnati to have the leg operated upon, expecting he would die. But he had recovered so far that I thought I would let him gather some strength, if possible, and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I began giving it to him. This medicine soon woke up his appetite, and he ate more heartily than for a long time. At this time the sore was discharging freely, and soon pieces of bone began to come out. I have since offered one piece of bone 3-4 inches long by nearly half an inch broad, which came out of the sore. The discharge from the sore decreased, the swelling went down, the leg straightened out, and soon he had perfect use of his leg. He now runs everywhere, as lively as any boy, and apparently cured.

It was about six months from the time that we began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla that I considered him perfectly cured. JOHN L. MCMURTRY, Notary Public, Ravenswood, W. Va.

A LEGEND OF THE LILIES.

Once, the old, dainty lilies—
Not St. Joseph's lilies, but
The lilies of the valley,
Sweet, sweet lilies of old,
Once, the lilies, one day whispered:
"Each has nothing half so fair,
Half so pure, as we white lilies,
And the spotless robes we wear."
"Every fragrant chalice lifted
Brings an honest cheer and ease,
And within our bosoms deep hidden,
Is a perfume like a prayer."
So the lilies, low commencing,
Spoke in murmurs and pride—
When among them walked a maiden,
In her beauty glowing.
Gleefully began all tidings,
And the pretty she said,
From her gentle, modest glance,
Made each lily hide its head.
"Is that Mary, Jesus' mother,
That among the lilies,
Shows that day, in silent homage,
Every lily's head to her?"
"Not they," says Jack, kissing her
And saying, "I would not desert her, Jack."
"You could come back again," says
Jack.
"Of course, I know that. But then she would always feel disappointed in me and I should—No, no, I shall never do that."
"Then I don't know what's going to be the end of it," says he.
"We must only wait," says Letitia, despairingly. "And now, Jack, you here presently to see how the men are getting on with that woman. You know what an excellent woman of business she is. If she caught you here—"
"There would be wig on the green," says Jack laughing. "Well, good-by-for awhile. I suppose if I come back again this evening I shall find you here?"
"Yes—oh, yes! Jack do take care; the men will see you!"
"Not they," says Jack, kissing her
and saying, "I would not desert her, Jack."
"You could come back again," says
Jack.
