Popular Myths.

The boy-of-day lives in a practical age, which not only laughs at superstition by establishing clubs which dine on Friday, the 13th of the month and sit down thirteen at the table, but not content with dealing with the superstition of the day, has discarded many of the legends which have survived for years and were regarded as historical.

RIDING FOR $1,000.

A Band of Yelling Cowboys Start for Buffalo Bill's Camp.

New York, June 12.—A wonderful horse race begins Tuesday. A band of shouting, yelling, devil-defying cowboys started from Chadron, a post town in Nebraska, some 400 miles from Omaha, to race to Buffalo Bill's camp at the World's Fair grounds, 1,000 miles away.

Gathered Abroad.

No horses are used in the City of Mexico. The coffins and mummies are borne to the cemeteries in horsecars.

Among other houses destroyed by the recent landslide at Sandgate, England, was one in which John R. Gough was born.

The hat last worn by Richard Wagner, with a certificate of genuineness attached, was offered for sale in Venice. It has a sort of "Gottenerammer" look about it.

A newspaper has just been started in London which is printed on a postal card. The first number has four illustrations, a comic tragedy, a few jokes and puzzles and some advertisements.

Baron Mundy, of Vienna, the veteran sanitarian, has issued a strong appeal for the establishment of an international sanitary code, and suggests the summoning of an international conference to discuss and arrange such a code.

The mummies of the high priests of Anunon, now in the possession of the Egyptian government, are to be raffled off shortly. They will be divided into six lots and drawn for by the museums of London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

Spinning wheels are not altogether things of the past. Go into Cornwall or Wales or to the Scotch Highlands and you will find plenty of cottages where the spinning wheel is as much a piece of useful household furniture as are the scrubbing brush and the kitchen broom.

Conundrums.

What tree bears the most toothsome fruit? Dentistry.

When do we find a grain of truth? When we curtail facts.

Why does Cupid carry an arrow? Because it is a weapon for the best.

Why should consumptives avoid Java? Because it is a coffee plant.

Why do people shoot when they go into caves? They are hollow places.

When people are quarreling outdoors what should they do? Go inside.

What departed statesman cannot be said to have gone to dust? Henry Clay.

Why is a pretty girl full of ribbons? Because she thinks the bees are coming.

Why should goat's milk be used in the dairy? Because the goat makes the best butter.

Why don't foreign countries marry poor American girls? They have no principle, hence no interest, and with neither a poor girl can be a success.—W. T. Woodruff.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years. It had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balms and used it freely, it is working a cure sure. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does not claim for itself. It is curing my deafness. —B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

How to Make Coffee.

The best coffee is made two-thirds Java, one-third Mocha. Have it evenly roasted, fresh roasted each day makes the best coffee. Use one coffee-bowl, filtered or strained. For boiled coffee, use one small cup ground coffee mixed with one egg, shell and all; pour in three pints of boiling water, let it boil from five to ten minutes. Steamed coffee—Pour boiling water on the coffee, set the pot in a dish of boiling water on the stove and cook from ten to twenty minutes. Use the water in the lower dish, boiling at the time.

"This, then, Miss Gramack," said the young man as he started for the door, "your final decision?" "It is, Mr. Wickliffe," said the young girl, firmly. "Then," he replied, his voice betraying an unusual calmness, "there is but one thing more to be said." "What is that?" she asked, looking at him with the look of a girl who has just been told that she is to be married.

She—No, I cannot marry you. He—But you have known me so much longer. She—Yes, I respect you, very much; I will be a sister to you. More I cannot be. He—You are my sister to me. She—Yes, I am. He—Then just bring me my stick and hat, and hold my overcoat for me—you might also bring it. Do not wear that horrid little apron it may take you to the theatre some night next week. Here is a kiss for you in the meantime. She—What do you mean, sir? He—I am merely taking up my part of brother.

Never Lost by Politeness.

"A man never loses anything by politeness," said a young little chap to his companion on the Brooklyn bridge promenade recently as he politely raised his hat to a former colored coachman.

Scarcely had the speaker concluded his words when a bit of paper fell from his hat and was whisked away over the railing and went floating down the river. "Just an infernal lack," he remarked after a hasty investigation, the benign expression leaving his face and one of anger taking its place.

"That was a $100 check," he added. "My wife has warned me about carrying things in my hat, and I lost that through owing to that black rascal of a coachman. I had the pleasure of horse whipping him once. There's some satisfaction in that."

"And as you were saying," remarked the other, "you have never lost anything by politeness. Your temper and your $100 check are gone."

"Yes, and I'm off, too," said the erstwhile polite individual as he turned in high dudgeon and retraced his steps, muttering curses and maledictions the while.

J. N. SYDNER, Druggist.

He—Miss Laura, won't you sing something? I heard Mr. Fitts say that he often enjoyed your singing. She—Mr. Fitts? Why, I don't know him at all. He—Well, that is queer. He lives about three blocks from here.

Woman to herself!—It scares me half to death to drive this horse. I wonder what he will do with me when I'm himself. I would be a woman driving me, or I might be jammed into anything on the road.

"Oh, my friend," wrote Horace Greeley to Mr. Dana, when the latter was editing the New York Tribune during Mr. Greeley's absence, "the words which I should like to see in your paper are the hardest to acquire of all." Lock bottom truth is that. Both men of the press, if we had all this wisdom, and having it, heeded it, some newspapers would not be more than half as large as they are.

Extra Hazardous.

Apply for insurance. "No sir! I neither drink, chew nor swear. I don't go to the theatre or attend halls and have no evil associates. I am at home always by ten o'clock, am a Sunday school teacher and my morals are beyond reproach. I never had a day's sickness in my life."

The following item, clipped from the Boston Herald, is worth remembering: "Mr. John Rith, of this city, who met with an accident a few days ago spraining and bruising his leg and arm quite severely, was cured by one 50 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm."
