A Prisoner's Set of Teeth. A well-known firm of bankers in London have just made a prefitable investment. According to the London Tilegraph, some time ago a man who had defrauded them of a large sum of money was taken into custody, convicted, and sentenced to a long term of penal servitude. Prison fare did not agree with one who had lived on the fat of the land. The change affected him in many ways, but he complained more particularly of the injury the food caused to his teeth. They were neither numerous nor in good condition when he was sentenced, and as they rapidly became worse he applied to the Governor of the prison for a new set. Being told that the Government did not supply prisoners with artificial teeth, at the first opportunity he wrote to the banking firm in question, offering, if they would send him a new set, to tell them something to their advantage. Thereupon the bankers, thinking the offer this day that man believes he hired a or of the prison a check for £5, and asked might be a genuine one, sent the Governhim to provide the convict with a set of artificial teeth.
