More Than 500 Lives Lost in Three Minnesota Towns.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 2.—The town Hinckley, in Pine county, 75 miles northwest of this city, at the junction of the St. Paul and Duluth and Great Northern railways, was wiped out by fire yesterday, and it is reported that from 500 to 800 lives were lost. Mrs. Lawrence, who arrived here this ofternoon, is the only one of the passengers from Duluth who has yet reached Minneapolis. She says that the first evidence of the fire was noticeable about 10 miles north of Hinckley, when the air became almost suffocating. One mile north of Hinckley a number of persons, 0, rushed toward the train, screaming threat that comes from the President, frantically. The engineer, seeing the danger they were in if they remained, stopped the train to let them aboard. The heat became intense and the whole volcano of fire seemed to burst out in a mighty effort to wipe the train and its ocupants off the face of the earth. Mrs. Lawrence, describing the scene, said: "At cars the window panes went out with a crash and the train began slowly to return toward Skunk Lake. People screamed and men jumped through the car windows. The wild panie was horrible. There was no humanity in it.
