The prisoner is a dirty, uncouth and was in a besotted condition when he was landed in the jail. He wore a "cavface, and smelled as though he had recontly been discharged from a skunk farm. He was very insolent to the Sheriff while he was being searched, but after he was locked in a cell he subsided and the next morning pleaded for a drink of whiskey. Of coarse he didn't get his accustomed "eye-opener," unless he riewed the Sheriff's orders that he be kept locked in his cell until he could bridie his tongue, in that light. It is not believed that the prisoner gave his right name to the Sheriff, although he insisted that he had, and that he came from Pittsbarg to this county for the purpose of baying cattle. The money, $1.25, he had in als pocket would indicate that he was not able to buy more than another "jag."

OPENING SESSION. The Teachers' Institute of 1894 was called to order in the Court room at 1:30 Monday afternoon by County Superintendent J. M. Berkey. Rev. J. S. Harkey, of the Latheran Church, conducted a short devotional service, after which F. J. Kooser, Esq., was introduced to the audience to deliver an address of welcome. The speaker said very truly that he could see no object in welcoming the public school | nity, teachers of the county to the county seat young men, all of whom are under age, when nearly the entire population of the town had turned out for that purpose interested in the cause of education than at another period a teacher; at another a evening between the hours of 11 and 12 director and is still a tax payer and in o'clock. They then made for the school educators," He welcomed the mountain above Edie where they were teachers as a pupil, as a teacher, as a didetected by Constable Rhoads, of Lincoln rector, as a tax-payer and as a sincere friend of education. He extended a welome to the teachers on behalf of the people of Somerset because they, the teachers, afford delightful entertainment and break the monotony of our county seat life by their cheering presence in annual inditute, and offered as a proof of the sincerity of the welcome the large and intelligent audience present at the first ses-

Mr. Kooser eulogized the instructors who have attended institute in years past and said that no teacher could attend the annual sessions and listen to the instruction falling from the lips of ripe scholars without absorbing almost as much knowledge as he would acquire by a course of study in a leading college, "The knowledge thus obtained," he continued, "is earried back to the school-room and is ising the Cinderella Range, which is the distributed among the children of the Commonwealth. I welcome you, therefore, because of the object which calls you here," Mr. Kooser spoke for probably a half hour and concluded by admonishing the teachers "to gather every bit of knowledge to be obtained during the week and earry the budgets back to the schoolrooms with them. "If you do this," he concluded, "I welcome you in behalf of every taxpayer in the Commonwealth."

Liberal applause followed the speaker's concluding remarks. Principal O. O. Saylor, of the Rockwood schools, replied to the address of welcome in one of the happiest and most appropriate speeches ever delivered before an assemblage of teachers in this county. Prof. Gibson followed with a drill i: music, after which Dr. Noss, of the California State Normal, delivered an excellent talk on "Things to Emphasize in Edneation." Dr. Noss is a very interesting and earnest talker and held the attention of his large audience throughout the period alloted him.
