Nine Lives of the Cat-It is a popular saying that pass has nine lives, and it is a fact, says the New York "World," the treatment that would kill many other animals does not kill a cat. A recent English authority gives some illustrations of this. There "Oh, Mr. Winthrop," said Mrs. C., used to be a farmer's cat named Joy, who was very fond of horses, and used about 30 miles above San Francisco. "No," answered Mrs. Winthrop, nearly always to sleep in the stablelaughingly, "I've bought and paid for often on the back of one of her friends. of the stablemen found her stretched on | and others joining them from the cab-Mrs. C. and Mr. Whittier passed on. the ground stiff and cold. ment, guarded by Warren and a half dozen assistants. About 50 roughs embarked on the steamer under the guise of cattlemen and ranchmen en route to Frisco on business. The freasure room was amidships on the lower deck. The steamers in those days carried a small cannon at the bow, which was discharged on landing, so as to notify the settlers. It also frightened the savage Indians, who soon came to regard the "floating houses" with fear and superstition. Warren suspected a move on the part of the roughs and fixed the gun on a pivot, so that it would command the stern of the boat and the approach to the treasure room. He heavily loaded the gun and then threw in a handful of pails for scattering shot The attack, he was informed was to be made at sun-down, just as soon as the boat was rounding the Pirate's cove, Warren and his men assembled in the how and soon noticed a number of
