

Harrisburg Letter.

Both Houses met pursuant to adjournment on Monday evening. Considering the time they were in session, a large amount of work has been done.

The city was in holiday attire on Tuesday in honor of the fourth annual reunion of General Hartman's division (the Third) of the Ninth corps.

On Saturday an article appeared in a Covington paper, in which a bitter attack was made upon Sanford. The publication was very bitter political, but was couched in the form of a local political squabble.

Kills in a Street Duel.

As the climax of an old feud between political boss Senator W. E. Goebel, and his personal friend and Secretary Carlisle, shot and killed Cashier John Sanford, of the Farmers and Traders National Bank in front of the First National Bank in Covington, Ky., one day last week.

Nothing since the famous Goodloe-Swope affair at Lexington, in which both men died, has created such a sensation in the State, while locally there is grave fear that more bloodshed will follow.

Besides being rivals in business Goebel, being a director in the Citizens National Bank, the two principals in the tragedy were bitter political foes, having espoused opposite sides of a local political squabble.

Personal encounters between members of the two factions have been frequent, and for three years probably 100 citizens have been constantly carrying pistols.

By the Moon's Light.

Oliver Curtis Perry, the noted New York Central train robber, and four other prisoners escaped from the state insane asylum at Mattawan N. Y., at a late hour Thursday night.

All were dressed in the asylum garb and wore white hats. They were seen by the warden and his men in separate rooms last evening and were supposed to be absolutely secure.

Since the discovery of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, all this has been changed—the action of Favorite Remedy upon the system leaves no trace of poison in the blood, the seeds of disease are expelled and the health restored.

General Gordon's Story.

At Gettysburg, while the fight was hottest, said General Gordon, I noticed a handsome young Federal officer, whose bravery was conspicuous.

After the battle had subsided I found this gallant soldier lying on the field. He was dying and begged me to send a message to the Union lines.

I ordered my men to take the wounded officer to our camp and to make him as comfortable as possible.

That night the party returned, and the meeting of the dying husband and his young wife was the most affecting scene which I have ever witnessed.

I was compelled to go elsewhere, but before I left the sorrowing couple I ascertained that the name of the wounded officer was Major Barlow, of New York.

I often thought of the sad incident, which made upon me one of the most vivid impressions that I received in my life.

The war closed. Ten years afterward I was with a distinguished gentleman in New York who invited me to be present at a dinner he was to give that evening.

Among the guests to whom I was introduced was a certain Major Barlow, a man whom I had left lying on the field at Gettysburg with his devoted wife beside him.

I once knew a General Gordon, he answered. But your Major Barlow I knew I did not.

I started to tell him the story of the Major Barlow whom I had left dying on the field at Gettysburg when he interrupted me, exclaiming:

My God, General Gordon, I am that man! But you were killed at Antietam.

I and I know you died at Gettysburg, said I, for I saw you.

Mutual explanations followed. It seems strange to me that the warmest friendship of my life should have begun in those awful scenes of blood and carnage at Gettysburg.

The simple story that I performed that day when I sent for that dying soldier's wife has made Mrs. Barlow count my wife for the rest of my life.

Politics Levels All Ranks. Politics, like love, levels all ranks, which fact was demonstrated at the recent election.

One of the best known women in Chicago, residing in the north division, went to the polling place on the first day of registration to be enrolled as a voter.

As she went to the carriage she observed that the second coachman was on the box. Then she remembered that Patrick had taken a leave of absence for a day.

Arrived at the polling place, she found Patrick in charge of the registration book. He did not rise when she entered, neither did he put his two fingers up to his forehead and address her as "Mum."

Patrick evidently grasped the full humor of the situation, but he maintained his dignity and administered the oath.

"Place give me your name madam," he said. "She did so."

"Where do you reside?" "She gave him the number on Lake Shore drive and calmly answered the other questions as to birthplace and time of residence in the State, county, and precinct.

Then she went away. Again, on election day, the coachman told her through the course of questioning, and showed her how to fold her ballot. Both did their parts beautifully.

The other people in the polling place wouldn't have known that the two had ever seen each other before.—Chicago Record.
