The People of Somerset Want the School

The people of Somerset borough have every reason to feel jubilant over the prospects of securing the Lutheran Colcommittee having the erection of the In- arrested the Pittsburger, but the borough stitute in charge and stand ready and authorities have preferred charges against willing to contribute more money than him for resisting an officer and it is probthe committee asked. The people of Somerset have gone to work in dead jail until the case has been disposed of by earnest to secure the school and they mean to have it if diligent effort will given by the prisoner. He had been secure it. The meeting announced in last week's HERALD to be held in the Lutheran church on Wednesday evening was postponed until Thursday evening when forty or fifty gentlemen interested in securing the Institute met in the coart room. W. H. Rappel, Esq., read the proposition made by the committee appointed to select a sight for the Institute, the first to put down his name for that struck him over the head with the beer amount and he was promptly followed by J. A. Berkey, Esq., W. H. Rappel, James McKelvey, Geo. H. Love and Chas, H. Fisher. None of the other gentlemen present felt able to subscribe $500 and Mr. Rupple appointed a committee composed of H. C. Beerits, H. L. Baer, James McKelvey, W. H. Sanner, Geo. H. Love, F. B. Saylor, and W. F. Shaffer to solicit subscriptions. Friday morning from Geo, R. Parker, Dr. J. M. THE OLD, OLD STORY.

fatally, burned at her home near Kant ner's station, about six o'clock Monday morning. Mrs. Ryan arose at an early hour and set about getting breakfast for her hashand and family of six small children. She was anxious to attend the funeral of a neighbor-Mrs. Yoderwhich took place at tea o'clock that morning and in order to to expedite matters she attempted to harry up the fire in the kitchen stove by pouring a lot of kerosine onto it from an oil can which she held in her right hand. The moment the stream of oil reached the coals it ignited and leaping up to the can exploded that vessel with a loud report, the burning oil flying in all directions. Mrs. Ryan was covered with the burning fluid from her waist to her feet, while her face and hands did not escape. The report of the explosion and the frantic screams of the unfortunate victim caused Mr. Ryan to spring from his bed and bound down the stairs at a single leap. He struggled to catch hold of his wife, but before he could do so setting forth that she was dying, and this east-bound train.
