Golden Wedding.

There was celebrated in Pittsburg on Monday 25th inst., the fiftieth anniversary of a wedding performed in Somerset, The principals were Lancelot Robinson Beacom and Malvina Reisinger, and they were married at the home of the bride by Rev. Henry Kern, of the Methodist Church. After the ceremony the young couple took their honeymoon trip in a buggy to Connellsville, their future home. All their worldly possessions were packed into a small trunk, which occupied a projecting truck in the rear of the buggy. The trunk was lost on the journey and not seen again for many days. Manifested by Teachers and the General Public.

The Somerset County Teachers' Institute closed its thirty-ninth annual session at 12 A. M. Friday. We believe that we voice the sentiments of every teacher and director who attended the various sessions when we say that it was the most successful meeting throughout of public school teachers ever assembled in the county. As an evidence of the elevated character of the instruction given by the eminent educators who were brought here from abroad it is only necessary to say that hundreds of people were turned away every session, unable to gain admission to the court room in which the Institute was held. The order maintained was exceptionally good, in fact, so eager were the audiences to absorb as much as possible of the wise and helpful instruction that fell from the lips of Dr. Schaeffer, Prof. Tompkins, Prof. Schmucker, Prof. Meese, Superintendent Berkey, and others, that it was unneces sary to ask for order from the element that on former occasions has proved more or less annoving. All seemed to be animated by a desire to learn and if any teacher returned to his school at the end

The general public was, also, highly edi-A pleasing and commendable feature of the Institute was the presentation of a valuable gold watch to County Superintendent Berkey by the teachers. The speakers question at hand was hackneved, but at newspapers and periodicals in the family circle in order that the children may acquire general knowledge and thereby a broader education than they can possible secure from the study of text-books alone.

Miss Janette McKinley, of Meyersdales read an excellent paper on "Home Influences in School Discipline," in which

Prof. Meese gave an interesting talk on "Language and Literature," which perintendent Schaeffer, who occupied the period assigned on the program to Dr. Waller, of the Indiana Normal-Superintendent Berkey having previously stated that Dr. Waller was detained at 24 that J. helpful suggestions to the teachers. Dr. A. J. Palmer's lecture Wednesday evening on "Company D: The Die-No-Mores," was of exceptional merit and interest. The lecturer prefaced his remarks by saying that the company of which he proposed to speak derived its queer sounding title from the fact that it was composed of very young men who had enlisted from a boys' school in New Jersey, and whose favorite song had been the good old Methodist hymn "We Are Going Home, to Die No More." Five only of the "Die-No-Mores" survived and they were captured along with the remaining survivors and taken to Richmond to languish in the prison pen on "Belle Island." He paid a glowing tribute to the heroism of the men who suffered in Southern prisons, hundreds of whom laid down their lives rather than desert the flag, when by so doing they could secure their liberty. Out of forty thousand Union soldiers confined in rebel prisons only ninety took of 1895 the best in the history of the the oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy.
