

QUAY AGREES TO RUN.

THE SENATOR REPORTED TO HAVE CONSENTED TO COME OUT AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

A telegram from Washington says: Senator M. S. Quay is an open and avowed candidate for President; his name will be presented at the St. Louis Convention by Governor D. H. Hastings, or one of the other Senators, and will be supported on the first ballot by the 64 delegates from Pennsylvania and many scattering ones from other States.

Although Senator Quay has been urged for some time to permit his name to be presented to the St. Louis Convention, he would not consent. The pressure became strong, however, that during the past week he began to show signs of yielding.

The Haywood interview increased the pressure, and the Senator yesterday afternoon fully yielded to the demand of his friends. To a correspondent last night he stated that as certain arrangements had been perfected he would permit his name to be presented to the convention. He declined positively to state what the arrangements were or to designate the other States that would give him delegates.

He was especially inclined to decline to be quoted in the newspaper. As he is now a presidential candidate, he thinks it judicious not to discuss the matter, and from now on until the nomination is made in June he will be more than ever "the silent man from Heaven."

It can be stated, however, that the Senator has received assurances of support from sources that would be a surprise to several of the other candidates. While the correspondent was with the Senator in his committee room yesterday morning two members of Congress and a State Senator from a Southern State called and pledged not only their personal support, but that a majority of the delegates from that State should be instructed for him.

As the Iowa delegation met and discussed the candidacy of Senator Allison, the Ohio delegation that of Major McKinley, and the New York delegation that of Governor Morgan, it is expected that the 28 Republican representatives from Pennsylvania will look after Senator Quay's interests in the same way. A dinner will be given when the nomination will be made, and a plan outlined for pushing Senator Quay's interests.

A View of Quay. From the Pittsburgh Press. The Washington Post, in politics professionally independent and in influence the capital's first newspaper, may be regarded as peculiarly well qualified to give an opinion on the close contact it comes into with sentiment from all parts of the country. It is interesting to hear what the Post has to say of Senator Quay's presidential candidacy.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 16.—A large barn belonging to Howard Van Bremen, of Whitman township, was destroyed by fire last night, together with its contents of grain, farm implements and other articles. The loss is estimated at $2,000, with $200 insurance. The fire was the work of an incendiary. A man was seen going from the barn just at the time the fire was discovered. It was traced nearly a mile. Suspicion rests on a neighboring farmer who held a grudge against Van Bremen and threatened to burn him down. The farmers are greatly excited and threaten to lynch the man if they catch him. He has disappeared, and a force of men are after him.

REMARKABLE TWINS. Tillie and Lizzie, of Philadelphia, nineteen years old, are remarkable twins, if the story told of them be true. When one suffers pain, the other feels it also. Either sister can find the other in a crowd of any size "without naming," as they express it. The resemblance between the two girls is remarkable. Both weigh exactly the same. Their recollections of past events are precisely the same. They do not wear a single ornament that did not happen in the presence of both. It takes the minds of both to retain a lasting recollection of any happening, but when the fact is once impressed upon the minds of both, neither one forgets its least important feature.

ONE MAY SEE THROUGH SMOKE. LONDON, Feb. 15.—Confirmation comes from several sources of Professor Salvioli's invention of an instrument which enables the human eye to see through opaque objects. The instrument consists of a cylinder of cardboard, the inner surface of which is coated with a material that absorbs light rays. A lens is placed at one end of the cylinder. The object to be examined, with its coverings, is placed between a Crookes tube and the lens. The light from the Crookes tube through the lens is reflected on the inner surface of the cylinder, and is then thrown on the fluorescent interior. The device is still experimental, but it is expected to be perfected in a few days.

AS THE ASTROLOGER SEES IT. NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—An astrologer, who has made a specialty of the Presidential candidates, finds that according to the stars McKinley has the best chance of nomination by the Republican convention. Mr. McKinley's friends are not underrating the event, let Quay-dating democratic organs interpret it as they may.
