the Remarkable Plated Lizard. The belief in a race of giants was once almost universal and held until recent years. Even today large skeletons when found are sometimes reported as being these of giant human beings. This was especially true of the period about the tenth and eleventh centuries, and in the latter a most amazing discovery was reported, which threw the scientific world of the time into great excitement. It was said that the body of Pallas, the son of Evander, had been discovered beneath the tomb of the emperor Henry III. The bones were enormous, and it is unnecessary to state, proved to have belonged to a huge fossil elephant. As late as the fifteenth century a war of words was waged over a find of large bones, one party claiming that they belonged to the giant Teutobochus. In 1857 a giant was discovered in Switzerland. The council of Lucerne requested a learned scientific man, Professor Felix Plater of Basel, to report upon it, and he not only announced the bones as part of a human giant, but made a complete restoration, showing the man 20 feet high, which the proud city adopted as an ancestor in the arms of the commonwealth. The design and some of the bones can still be seen in the college of Besuits at Lucerne. Unfortunately for the theory and much to the discomfiture of the people who had raised to a high pinnacle this mighty ancestor, it was found to be the remains of an elephant.

Nearly all the masteden finds in this country were attributed to giants, but there is no evidence that a human giant ever existed over 8 feet in height, and if is extremely doubtful if this beight was ever attained. Giants other than human are very common in all branches of the animal kingdom-giants in every sense when compared to their pygmy representatives of today. Some years ago some laborers in the Senalik hills of India were engaged upon a government work when they came upon the remains of a turtle that proved beyond question that these animals had their giants in the days of old. The shell which the men exposed might have been used as a shelter for several men, and at first, before its bony nature was observed, it was thought by the natives to be a but of some kind. Fortnnately the bones were uninjured, and British museum, where a complete reslength of the tartle was 10 feet, its girth 15 feet, but it was estimated by torial South America and in Central America in the lizard, iguana, which attains a length of 4 or 5 feet and is considered a large lizard, but it was a pygmy when compared to an ancester that once wandered over England and various portions of the world. A number of years ago some workingmen were excavating and blasting in a quarry near Maidstone, England, when some bones were uncovered that caused profound astonishment on the part of the finders. The skeleton was perfect, and as it was lifted out, bone by hone, their amazement increased, and the news was spread all over the country, attracting large numbers of people. When the bones were placed in their proper position, they were found to be the skeleton of a gigantic lizard that when alive must have been three times as bulky as the largest living elephant and stood upon its hind legs like a kangaroo, tearing down branches from the highest trees. Such an animal was a slow mover and sluggish and must have fallen an easy prey to the human hunters, if they ex-bizarre and remarkable than the land forms. If we can imagine the little iguana lengthened out to 30 feet, its back spines changed to broad finlike objects, we form some idea of the appearance of one of the small dinosaurs. Stegosaurus ungulatus, one of the most uncanny and remarkable creatures ever found. It is called the plated lizard, and the best skeleton was found on the eastern flank of the Rocky Mountains. Some of the at the head of this unsightly street, you plates with which this armored lizard were protected were two or three feet in diameter and the spines over two feet in length. From the fact that the hind limbs were the largest, it is evident that this strange creature could lift itself up and sit like a kangaroo, resting upon its powerful tail, which, with its enormous spines, must have been a

A giant from America had a skull that measured eight feet in length. Almost over the eyes were two large horns, a third placed over the nose. The great length of the skull was given by a huge crest that was protected by a ridge of long plates. The mouth of the triceratops was protected by a horny beak. In life it must have presented a formidable appearance, with a body clumsy and low like that of a hippopotamus, a long tail like an alligator's, its head calling to mind the rhinoceros. This monster was 25 feet in length and must have been one of the strangest animals of its time.-Philadelphia Press.

WHAT MAKES THE PIANO RATTLE!

Queer Causes Found by the Tuner-Things Piano tuners are sometimes called upon to "tune" gas fixtures as well as pianes. Frequently the owner of a fine upright "grand" enters a vigorous comaint because "that piano rattles so." Then the piano taner packs his few tools and some extra glue and parts of the 'action" into his long, slender valisa and proceeds to feel the pulse, pound the chest, examine the tongue and overhaul the internal economy of the ofading piano. His experienced ear ils him that the piano is all right. His intimate knowledge of the mechansm and make up of the piane assures him that nothing is the matter with the nstrument, and he says so. But the piano does rattle," insists the owner. "Now, listen when I touch this key." And, sure enough, a decided buzz and jingle are heard. "It is not in the piano," replies the tuner, and he touches the key again and again, at the same time glancing around the room. "There it is," he says at last, "pointing to the glass globe around the gas jet. "There is the attler." and the irritating noise is simeed when he removes the glass globe. This is a common experience of piano nners. Certain notes in the piano vibrate in harmony with a gas fixture, a picture frame, a china plaque hung against the wall or the brie-a-brac which mmonly litters the top of the sensitive instrument, and the innocent piano is blamed for the discordant jangle. Pins, buttons and other things foreign to the piano which find their way into the instrument set up complaints and harsh cries when certain keys are struck, and recently a piano toner in Evanston, searching for the "rattle," found and restored to the young woman who used the instrument her upper set of false teeth, which had disappeared mysteriously the week before.

Besides coins, buttons, pins and toothpicks, the piano tuner's salvage includes hairpins, pocketknives, paper cutters, manicure instruments, knitting needles, matches, jewelry, nails, tacks, bits of glass, pieces of picture wire, buckles, collar buttops, sleeve buttons, rings and even money which had been placed in the case for safe keeping and then forgotten.-Chicago Chroniele.

The "Arabian Nights" Once More. A large part of Cairo is very little spoiled. It is still, to a great degree, the city of the "Arabian Nights." Thus, night after night, things disappeared and I became alarmed lest the snake would devour every head of live stock I possessed. So I closed up every hole I could find under the hen house and that ended it.

"I forgot all about the snake until a few nights ago when I was going home from Rauchtown.
