It is not needful in this place to enter into a detailed exposition of the provisions and effects of the McKinley bill. The Nation knows them. The Nation knows that it took the tax life; that it stimulated old industries and called new ones of vast magnitude into prosperous existence; that it greatly extended, by a wise system of reciprocity, the foreign commerce of the country; that it provided means for conducting the Government and keeping the financial credit of the Nation unimpaired. These are the facts now abundantly recognized beyond all challenge. We may quote as absolutely true the words spoken by Mr. McKinley himself at the time when the measure was repealed and the present Democratic product of "perfidy and dishonor"
