The battle of Waterloo was fought on June 18, 1815, and the hundreds of thousands of men who struggled that day for supremacy have all passed away except two in America, four in the British Isles and six in France, and most of these men are centenarians. James R. Green, 98 years old, a resident of Ellsworth, Mahoning county, Ohio, while not a participant of the great battle, had the privilege of witnessing the thrilling events of that week in Belgium which marked the downfall of the Napoleon dynasty and who viewed that battle from a better vantage ground perhaps than any of the participants.

He gave a vivid description recently of the battle of Waterloo. Mr. Green is a remarkable character and possesses a striking personality, tact with him. He was born in Bolton, Lancashire, England, July 25, tidings of her boy. However, I kept 1798, and entered the English navy when 16 years old as a midshipman. The next year his ship was employed in transporting English soldiers for Wellington's army across the Channel from Southampton to Antwerp, and it was at this time that he accidentally witnessed Waterloo. He describes the battle as follows: "I was a sailor lad of King George III. and was employed as a midshipman on a warship in June, 1815. After the British fleet had transported Wellington's army across the Channel to the seaport of Antwerp, my vessel was anchored in the harbor at that place. The soldiers had told me that great about to meet Napoleon, who was making a desperate effort to regain the power which he had once held over Europe. Securing permission, five boys, myself included, left the ship and started across Belgium in the direction we were told the British army was eamping. We came first to Ligny, where the preliminary battle of that terrible week in Belgium took place. We were two miles distant from the left flank of Napoleon's army after Ligny, and we concluded to follow and watch the encounter.

"At Quatre Bras Napoleon attacked the outposts of the Duke of Wellington, but he was repulsed, falling back to Waterloo that night, where he determined to make his final stand. The French army bivouacked in large fields of rve, which was almost ripe, on the pretty plain of Waterloo. On the night of June 17 there was a continuous rainstorm, making it very disagreeable for the soldiers. The clouds cleared away on the following morning, and with a sea glass which we had taken from the ship we stood on the heights some distance away and saw the great struggle.

"We could see Napoleon on his charger, riding his lines preparing for the battle. The lines were formed, and soon the field was filled with smoke, and he roar of cannon reverberated through the hills of Belgium. In the afternoon the fierce struggle ceased, and the field was a sickening sight. The green rye had been trampled down, and the field was nothing but dust, like the middle of the road, while the dead and wounded lay scattered thickly over the great

"After the battle we went over the field and saw some dreadful sights. "I can remember distinctly seeing Blucher, Napoleon, the Duke of Wellington and George IV. I remember see ing George III. and his couriers riding down to the London docks upon many a morning. During the reign of William IV. I remember having seen Queen Victoria in a villa near London, playing in a garden, and I have dis-

An occasional scattering of wood ashes around the sweet pea vines will help them, but strong fertilizers should be avoided now, as they will encourage the development of vines at the expense of bloom.

July Plant Notes.

If rose bushes mildew in hot, damp weather apply sulphur after they are watered.

Keep the flowers picked from the annuals if you would have abundant and constant bloom. Keep cut flowers fresh by elipping the ends of the stems and putting a pinch of soda in the water.

Try sprikling pulverized borax around plants that are intested by ants.

Dust rose bushes occasionally with air slacked lime to kill the slugs, Remember that the petals of the old-fashioned hundred-leaved rose is the best for potpourri, for rose water and for filling dainty sofa cushions. Keep vines well tied as they grow and they will not straggle off at loose ends to be broken by winds or tangled among their own tendrils. If you have neglected to set out a bed of gladiolus there is still time for it, and the buits planted in July will give an abundance of late fall flowers.

He Saved the Horse Thief.

I rode into Red Blanket, a cowboy's own in Southwestern Texas, one sumner morning, intending to buy sheep and cattle, and found that a crowd of lynchers had caught a horse thief and were about to rope him up to a tree on the fair grounds, whither all the grown men and boys of Red Blanket had gathered to sanction the proceedings

ARCHER'S FAVORITE HORSE.

Pathetic Story of the Famous Jockey and the Steeplechaser Fatigue. Archer, the celebrated jockey, was riding in a steeplechase, his mount being a horse called Fatigue. The man was fond of the horse, which returned his affection with liberal interest. At the last fence the horse fell and broke his Archer, though of course thrown, away from the horse, and was not badly hurt. The pathetic scene that fol-owed is described by Vogue: He started away to deliver news of the accident and arrange to have the horse shot, but was stopped by hearing a whinny. Poor Fatigue could only lift his head, but he was looking after and calling the rider he loved so well. Archer returned to the horse, and sitting precate the illegality of a privte hang- down on the turf, took the poor creating at the hands of Judge Lynch and ure's head in his lap, and sent a boy with a message for what was necessary. Meanwhile the horse lay still, except for an occasional spasm of pain.

No one wanted to shoot poor Fatigue A small boy finally volunteered, if no one else would, but he'd "a heap ruther not." When the pistol was finally given him his small hands trembled so that Archer took the weapon from him, say-'You're nervous, lad; you'll bungle

it. He sha'n't have his pain added to. He'll never know what put him out of his misery." Addressing the horse, he added. "If I wasn't fond of you I sha'n't run risks of being hurt more." With one hand he caressed the horse's head, with the other he put the pistol to the forehead.

"Good by, Fatigue, old chap, good and he pulled the trigger. Fatigue hardly struggled, but settled down, dead, with his head still on his were cast upon him by the cowboys, favorite rider's lap; and Archer sat quite still till the last quiver was over, his head bowed, and did not notice that

GERMAN PAWNSHOPS.

There is a royal pawnshop in Berlin, there are state pawnshops, ducal pawn shops, county pawnshops, city or municipal pawnshops and private pawnshops. The municipal and private pawnshops may both exist in the same town. The rate of interest was fixed by a law passed in 1881 at not more than 24 per cent per annum on loans under 20 marks, and not over 12 per cent on

In Berlin the pawnshop is a royal institution, and is not allowed to make a profit. Its surplus goes to charitable purposes. At Hanau no interest is charged on loans up to 3 marks if the articles are redeemed within six days. At Hof, in Baden, people are allowed to raise money, giving as security the receipt of their wages two or three weeks

At Weimar and Hanau anonymous pawning is the rule. No names are asked and no address is given. Provision is made at Memel for merchants depositing goods in time of temporary embar-

At Bautzen raw wool is received in pledge. At Bromberg military accounterments are excluded from the articles which may be pawned. The pawnshop at Detmold will not receive articles in pawn from servants without the consent of their masters. At Altenberg and one couldn't bring myself to do it; but you or two other places no one is allowed to pawn articles of more than 100 marks' value without the consent of the town

Although private pawnbrokers exist alongside the municipal institutions, in many towns the latter refuse to do business with the former. Secondhand dealers and pawnbrokers are especially prohibited from resorting to the municipal pawnshop. A salutary regulation against dealing with pawn tickets is frequently enforced. The rate of interest fluctuates a great deal in Germany, and is highest for small sums loaned for short periods. The average is about 12 per cent and on loans issued against securities 4 or 5 per cent. -Berlin Letter.

Just What's Needed-

Exclaim thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the buildingup powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes nials may be sown with good success Hide to dispose of will find that the CONat this season and they will have time

Remember that the beauties of the chrysanthemum season depend upon the care given the plants now. Keep the branch tips pinched back for a week or two longer to give the plants a chance to form quantities of blooming branches. Give thorough cultivation and plenty of water. Even in the most severe cases of sprain or bruise, cut or burn, Thomas' Eclectric Oil gives almost instant relief. It is the ideal family liniment.

At Last.

Beelzebub laid aside the newspapers in which he had been reading with lively interest the recent speeches of Pitchfork Tillman, of South Carolina, and Ex-Congressman Belford, the Red-Headed Rooster of the Rockies, together with the regular daily record of crimes, and rubbed his hands glee-

"Everything seems to be coming my way," he said, "I believe I can safely take a vacation this year."-Chicago

If the rose bushes become red and rusty give a thorough sprinkling once a week with water in which has been put a handful of Paris green to a bucketful of water.

SUCCESS IN EYE SURGERY. Cataract and Crooked Eyes Restored.

Mrs. Mary Morrison, Venicia, Washington Co., had a cataract successfully removed last month at the age of 70. Miss Mattie Carpenter, Koewn, Allegheny Co., has suffered for years with weakness of the muscles of the body, flushes of heat in head, cold feet, eye, causing constant headache and screness without ever learning the cause. Dr. Sadler recently made an operation that gave instant relief to the strain.
