

NEW BUSINESS is the Wail of the Nerves for Food.

People with Weak, Flabby Nerves are the Ones who Suffer. They may be Relieved by Building up their Nerves with a Nourishing Nerve Food.

An Interesting Interview with a Prominent Physician and a Case in Point Cited.

From the Journal, Kirksville, Mo.

"What a weak-kneed individual!" the person referred to did, indeed, look broken down, despondent, and lifeless. "What is the matter with him?" "I scarcely know," said the cool-headed doctor, "but he seems to have some life and a little ambition; but the nervous system is so weak that he cannot get on his feet and seems to have no strength or vitality."

"That explained the case. The man was in a generally run-down condition with not enough reserve force to resist the enervating, weakening effect of his nervous system," said the doctor. "The nerve food he was taking was, he had constantly drawn on his reserve force so long that his nervous system was so exhausted that he was unable to get on his feet and seemed to have no strength or vitality. It is not surprising, therefore, that he was in such a run-down condition."

The Same Old Circus.

The circus announced itself in the good old way weeks before-hand by the vast posters of former days and by a profusion of small bills which fell upon the village as from the clouds, and left it littered everywhere with their festive print. They prophesied it by a name borne by the first circus I ever saw, which was also an animal show, but the animals must have all died during the fifty years past, for there is no menagerie attached to it. I did not know this when I heard the band braying through the streets of the village on the morning of the performance, and for me the mangled old elephants and the pimpled elephants of yore led the procession through accompanying ranks of graves for half a lifetime, the distracted throng an advertising neck through the top of the cage, and the lion roared to himself in the darkness of his moving prison. I felt the old thrill of excitement, the vain hope of something pre-natural and impossible, and I do not know what could have kept me from that circus, as soon as I had done lunch. My heart rose at sight of the large tent which was yet so very little in comparison with the tents of the three-ring and two-platform circuses; the alluring and illusory side shows of fat women and lean men; the horses tethered in the background and stamping under the fly-blies; the old wealthy-looking grand chariot which looked like the ghost of the grand chariot which used to drag me captive in its triumph; and the canvas shelters where the eels were already at work over their kettles on the evening meal of the circus folk.

His Other Name.

Mark Twain gave the following account of Artemus Ward in one of his best lectures: "As Artemus was once traveling in the cars, dreading to be bored, and feeling miserable, a man approached him, sat down, and said: "Did you hear that last thing of Horace Greeley?" "Greeley, Greeley," said Artemus—"Horace Greeley? Who is he?" "The man was quiet about five minutes. Very soon he said: "George Francis Train is kicking up a good deal of a row over in England; do you think they will put him in a bustle?" "Train, Train, George Francis Train," said Artemus, solemnly; "I never heard of him."

This ignorance kept the man quiet for fifteen minutes, then he said: "What do you think about General Grant's chances for the presidency? Do you think they will run him?" "Grant, Grant? Hang it man," said Artemus, "you appear to know more strangers than any one I ever saw."

The man was furious; he walked up the car, but at last came back and said: "You confounded ignoramus; did you ever hear of Adam?" Artemus looked up and said: "What was his other name?"

The Water He Had Hauled.

One day as Pat halted at the top of the river bank a man famous for his inquisitive mind stopped and asked: "How long have you hauled water for the village, my good man?" "Ten years, sor," was the ready answer. "All I suffered from was a weak back and a headache, but you take in a day?" "From ten to fifteen, sor."

"Ah, yes. Now I have a problem for you. How much water at this rate have you hauled in all, sir?" Pat promptly jerked his thumb backward toward the river and replied: "All the water yez don't see there now, sor."—Christian Advocate.

Why is it, if catarrh is a blood disease, as some claim, that physicians frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering? Catarrh is a climatic affection, and nothing but a local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Ely's Cream Balm is so efficient as to do away with the necessity of leaving home and friends, causing instant relief and is a real cure of catarrh.

THINK IT OVER

There's a reason for those pains in your back and sides, for those dull, dragging aches, that "keep-away-from-me" feeling. The kidneys are to blame. They get sick, can't do their work, and the whole system feels the effect, just as a whole town feels the effect of a blocked sewerage system.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Set matters right quickly and easily. They never fail even in the most advanced stages of Kidney disease.

Dr. Joseph Mack, 114 Peter St., Johnston, R.I., says: "During the most part of last winter I suffered kindly with a weak back and had backache. The pain was across the back just over the kidneys. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and bought a box. After taking a few pills I felt better. I continued to take them until I was cured. They are medicine of high merit. All pain can be relieved by their use. I recommend them to all sufferers."

Pennsylvania's Great University.

Department of Dentistry.

The alumni and friends of the Department of Dentistry will learn with satisfaction that the plans for the new building which is to be the future home of the department are rapidly being completed, and there is good reason to expect that within a few weeks ground will be broken for its construction.

The plot of ground upon which the new building is to be erected is located at the intersection of Locust and Thirty-third Streets, in close relation to Franklin Field. The plans which were finally decided upon and accepted by the Board of Trustees are the result of much study and careful preparation.

As a preliminary step, and with the end in view of securing a satisfactory building, a committee of the dental faculty was sent, in January of the present year, to make a study of the architectural and educational features of the principal dental schools of this country. Eleven of the most prominent colleges were visited and carefully studied with the result that a mass of valuable data was obtained which will be utilized with suitable modifications, in meeting the needs of our own Dental Department.

The central motive of the undertaking was that, as a dental educational plant, it should be the best of its kind. This involved the development and expansion of the educational system of the Department of Dentistry along lines which would place it definitely upon a University plane, and the erection of a building which in its construction and appointments would adequately provide for the educational plan projected.

The rapidly increasing development of a University spirit and the interest manifested throughout the whole student body in University life have been especially noticeable during the past season. As factors in the cultivation of a common University interest the athletic relationships are to be especially noted. The near completion of a large portion of the Dormitory buildings can be safely counted upon as another important factor in strengthening the bonds which unite students of all departments, centralizing their interest in and loyalty to the University as a whole.

In these features of University life the dental student is a participant upon equal terms with the students of all the other departments; and he, as another important factor in strengthening the bonds which unite students of all departments, centralizing their interest in and loyalty to the University as a whole.

Sixteen to One.

Miss Director Preston has made the following simple and comprehensive statement in regard to the change in ratio between gold and silver in response to frequent inquiries on that point.

All standard silver dollars coined by the mints of the United States since January 18, 1876, have been coined in the ratio of 1 to 15.884, generally called the ratio of 1 to 16—15.884 being nearly 16. Still, to reach accurate results, the former and not the latter figure must be used in calculation. The ratio is obtained in this way:

The silver dollar contains 371.25 grains of pure silver and the gold dollar 23.22 grains of pure gold. If you divide 371.25 by 23.22 you will get the ratio of weight between a gold dollar and a silver dollar—that is, 15.884. It is true that on a pair with gold, silver would (at our ratio) be worth $1.229. The reason is this: A gold dollar contains 23.22 grains of pure gold. In an ounce, or 480 grains of gold there are as many dollars as 23.22 is contained times in 480, or one ounce. If you divide 480 by 23.22 you get $20.67, the number of dollars that can be coined out of an ounce of pure gold; in other words the money equivalent to one ounce of gold or of 15.884 ounces of silver at the ratio of 1 to 15.884. Now, if 15.884 ounces of silver be worth $20.67, one ounce will be worth $1.229, as you can prove by simple division. The same result is obtained by dividing 480 grains or one ounce of silver by 371.25, the number of grains of pure silver in a standard silver dollar, at the ratio of 1 to 15.884, which gives $1.229.

A Pretty Story.

An amusing story of ingenious childhood is told by a former maid-of-honor in the service of Queen Victoria. A little niece of hers visited her one day at the court. The Queen caught sight of the child, and, pleased with her innocent prattle, asked the lady-in-waiting to have the little visitor come to luncheon some day at the palace.

The child was taken on the appointed day to the royal table. While quite unconscious of the honor conferred upon her, she was quiet and well-behaved, and not inclined to talk unnecessarily. During the luncheon service she was served. The child ate her portion with a keen relish, and was careful in the use of her knife and fork. Suddenly she started at the Queen with eyes like round towers. Then pointing her small finger in the direction of her Majesty, she exclaimed with a tone of reproach:

"O piggie, piggie!"

The Queen had taken one of the chicken-bones quite delicately in her fingers but the carefully trained child, who had been warned in the nursery that this was a breach of propriety in young people, could not refrain from repeating an expression that she had often heard her governess use. Every one at the table was startled, but the Queen at once laid it on laughter, enjoying quite heartily the joke at her own expense.—Youth's Companion.

THERE IS NO SECRET IN THIS WOMAN'S CASE.

Mrs. Campbell Wishes Her Letter Published So That the Truth May Be Known.

OF the thousands of letters received from women all over the world by Mrs. Pinkham, not one is given to the public unless by the wish of the writer. Thus absolute confidence is established between Mrs. Pinkham and her army of patients; and she freely solicits a letter from any woman, rich or poor, who is in ill health or ailing.

In the case of Mary E. Campbell of Albion, Noble Co., Ind., her suffering was so severe, her relief so suddenly realized, and her gratitude so great, that she wishes the circumstances published, in the hope that others may be benefited thereby. She says:

"My physician told me I had dropsy and falling of the womb. My stomach and bowels were so bloated I could not get a full breath. My face and hands were bloated badly. I had that dreadful bearing down pain, backache, palpitation of the heart and nervousness.

"One of my physicians told me I had something growing in my stomach; and the medicine that I took gave me relief only for a short time. I thought I must die. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it worked like a charm.

"After taking the first bottle I could walk across the street; now I am well. I advise all my friends to take it, for it is surely the most wonderful medicine for female ills in the world. I feel that my cure is miraculous."

MARY E. CAMPBELL, Albion, Noble Co., Ind.

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkham's wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. Druggists say it is wonderful.

From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it. All intelligent women now acknowledge its reliability.
