Excursion of Somerset County Republicans to Canton. UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE LIN-

Incidents of the Pilgrimage. - A Jolly Time

Sixteen hundred Somerset County Republicans visited Canton, Ohio, and personally paid their respects to Governor McKinley last Tuesday.

One-third of the Republican voters and almost one-fourth of the entire voting population of the county were present. It was a splendid crowd and reflected the enthusiasm and earnestness with which "The Frosty Sons of Thunder" have entered upon the campaign for Protection and Sound Money, as well as the admiration they have for the standard bearer of the party, who typifies more clearly than any other American the great interests of the campaign.

When the Lincoln Club, of Somerset, suggested the excursion they had not the faintest idea that it would be received with such enthusiasm in every voting district in the county. The members of the Club realized that Major McKinley was the most popular candidate in Pennsylvania ever nominated by any party, sonal esteem by the voters of Somerset county, many of whom had had the pleasure of greeting him on former occasions; but at the same time they were conscious of the fact that Canton is more at an early hour Saturday morning. The than 250 miles distant from Somerset and funeral took place at 5:30 o'clock Sunday that a pilgrimage thither was no small bread by the sweat of their brow.

The excursion was announced through the columns of the HERALD three weeks in advance and before four days had expired word was received from one-half of the voting districts in the county, asking that railroad accommodations be secured for delegations from each place. Meyersdale asked that four cars be set aside for the Republicans of that place and surrounding country. Salisbury said that enough Republicans would take the train at their station to fill two cars; and word to the same effect was received from Rockwood and Confluence; Addifrom Paint and Conemaugh arose at 4 o'clock in the morning to embark on the excursion train which left Holsopple at 4:55; Hooversville station contributed more than enough passengers to complete this car load. Just us the first section pulled out from Rockwood the second section of 14 gars from Meyersdale arrived at the station. It was a matter of sincere regret to many of the people on both sections that they gould not meet at that place, but the railroad authorities would not delay a minute. When the first section passed Casselman, Markleton, Ursina and Conflueuce they were lustily cheered by the people assembled on the platforms.

The second section picked up passengers at all stations between Meyersdale and Confluence, including the passengers from the Salisbury, Berlin and Confluence & Oakland branches. It also had on board the Salisbury, Meyersdale and Confluence bands.

A majority of the cars on both sections were decorated with banners and flags, and several were further ornamented with huge bonquets of golden rod, emlematic of the "gold standard." Among the shock in his case that he has since other inscriptions on the banners were: "Lincoln Club, Somerset, Pa.," "Garfield Club, Meyersdale, Pa.," "Listie Miners, Football at the Normal one day last Somerset County," "Farmers' Club, Mosweek resulted in the aimost fatal injury toller, Pa.," "Wm. When the procession arrived at Major McKinley's modest residence-there are forty more pretentions residences in both somerset and Meversdale-several hundred Cantonians, who collected on the lawn, respectfully stood back, and when it was found that the "Frosty Sons of Thunder" would occupy every inch of available space on the lawn, they withdrew to the street. After the bands had played several inspiring tunes, the future President of the United States appeared pon the veranda, wearing a Lincoln Club badge in the buttonhole of his close itting frock coat. The enthusiasm with which Major Me-Kinley's masterful speech was received is described elsewhere.

At the conclusion of the Major's remarks he shook hands with every man present from Somerset county, many of whom he recognized and called by their first names. It was now almost dark and the Frosty Sons of Thunder, after giving the Champion of Protection a parting cheer, returned to the railroad station where they re-embarked upon the cars, and were soon speeding on the return trip to their mountain homes.

It was a glorious day for Republicanism; a giorious day for the Frosty Sons of Thunder, and a glorious day for all who took advantage of the splendid opportunity to visit the standard-bearer of the party at his home. It was a day that of night and aroused the wild birds with will long be remembered by all who participated in the pilgrimage, and will be looked upon hereafter as a bright day in the lives of the men who till the broad fields and work in the shops of dear old Somerset county.

Yesterday nearly 2000 of the residents of that highest county in Pennsylvania came to Canton and brought a message of good will to Major McKinley. The delegation was accompanied by three good bands of music, and left their mountain home at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, arriving here at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The delegation was composed of onefifth of the voters of the county and was a fine looking body of men.

Nearly every member of the delegation wore two neat strips of ribbon-gold and white-on the lapel of his coat. On the gold was printed "Frosty Sons of Thundr," and on the white "Somerset County, Pa." The mouths of the people and the columns of the newspapers are just now filled with talk of Canton, Ohio, the home of the presidential candidate, Major Me-Kinley, and the Mecca of all good Republicans. This reminded the veteran Daniel Trent to say to us the other day that he with nine others left here in the spring of 1844, fifty-two years ago, to tramp to this now historic town. Mr. Trent says that the other members of the party remained but a short time, some coming back home and others going elsewhere, but he lived and worked in Canton for several years, casting his first vote there in the fall of 1844 for Henry Clay. He accompanied the excursion to Canton last Tuesday.
