To some people-to most reasonable people-it might be sufficient reply to point out that Senator Stewart was at the time a member of the Senate, but then the Senator has pleaded the "baby act," and says he did not understand the bill. He was also in the gall of bitterness and bonds of iniquity at the time, being still a gold bug whose eyes had not been opened to the divinity of silver. But if Mr. Stewart, Mr. Bryan and the other champions of debased currency are too busy talking of the iniquity of the "crime" to have time to "erime."
