ANALYSIS OF THE COUNTY VOTE.

Fallacious Anti-Election Claims Disposed of. During the recent campaign it was many times asserted that when the election returns come in there would be found a great defection to exist among the farmers who had hitherto been voting the Republican ticket. That they would be deeply imbaied with the heresy ished the official program for the 40th of Free Silver, and that the results every-

The total vote for all parties as cast Somerset county foots up a total of 8310;

The boroughs also also gave the following vote to other candidates: Levering, (Pro.).....

While the townships of Elk Lick and Summit are second to none in the county as farming townships, yet as the mining interests there are largely developed, this article will deal with their vote separately: The total vote of the two townships was 856 divided ar follows; McKinley and Hobert 529

The Prohibition, Socialist and Jeffersonian electors each received one vote here.

The remaining townships of the county may be fairly classed as purely agricultural, or at least nearly so. The mining interests at Listie and other points along the line of the S. & C. R. R. are not extensive enough to take any of them out of this class; not more than two of their villages would have a population large enough for incorporation as boroughs, and these townships can, therefore, be classed as being distinctively agricultural as any in the State. Their total vote is 5334, divided as follows: McKinley and Hobert 3885 received 62 and the Jeffersonian electors 6 votes.

Had there been any foundation for the anti-election claims made for Free Silver it would be shown in the largely increased vote that would have been given to Bryan as compared with the Democratic ote of previous years-but there is no uch increase. While there is an increase of 30 votes over 1802, that is not even (what the natural increase would be -while it is a decrease of 208 votes when ompared with the largest previous Dem peratic vote, which was in 1880.

On the eastern side of the flat is a ledge of rocks betain. Here one may hear the hideous howls at any hour of the night or see bundreds of trails they have left in the snow during the winter. These wolves are becoming an awful plague to the citizens of the mountain surrounding their den. Not more than ten days ago a spring calf belonging to Jacob A. Miller, an old resident of that section, was entirely eaten up in a single night. On the following morning one of the howlers was still gnawing at a bone and upon the approach of Mr. Miller it made a leap of about 20 feet and in a moment was out of Childrens' Jackets are cheap at sight. Rev. Joseph M. Beam who lives on the top of Laurel Hill has been annoyed by wolves during the last year until he has practically given up the notion of keeping sheep, or attempting to raise pigs. One day last week a pack of them
