us, Thanksgiving is none the less a day of the class that there was no longer say hope to be held out as it was a malady which in this instance at least was incurable. It was therefore with a feeling of utter despair that Mrs. Collier first began to administer pensed and through numerous instrumentalities the necessities and sufferings of many a worthy person have been relieved. Absent members of households reunite at the old numestead and gathered around the festal board recount the incidents that have taken place and the various blessings that have taken place and the various blessings that have been vouchsafed them, since they assembled at the last annual meeting by the same fireside. It is a time for memory and for joy. Among the countless families of Chicago there is perhaps, not one to-day that feels a deeper sense of gratinude to the Giver of all good.

Mr. Collier, who is the electrician at the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad shops in this city came here from Hamilton, Canada, a little more than nine years ago accompanied by his wife and little daughter, their selly child Etta, then aged four. Little Etta was a bright and beautiful girl, but not a very robust one.

For the last few years she had been somewhat alling, but her condition was not such as to create any uncasiness in the minds of her parents, who almost idolized her. In the school she was regarded as one of the brightest schedurs of her class and was the entry of her class-mates. Although but a fittle over twelve years of age, her intellect was phenomenal. She was possessed, however, of a very nervous temperament which is frequently the case with children of her advanced intelligence. Early in the month of June last, owing to a sudden fright, she was thrown into violent spasms, to recover only to be afflicted with St. Vitual dance in the worst form. The consternation of her parents may well be imagined.

She continued to grow worse, her appetite wholly failed and commencing with her right arm her whole right side and lower limb became limp, numb, and useless and shat little nourishment she was able to take had to be administered by others. To add to the seriousness of the case she was unable to obtain any sleep whatever.

It was while in this deplorable condition bevering between life and death with all the prospects of a premature grave before her, that one day on returning home from his duties Mr. Collier found awaiting him a newspaper, which an old acquaintance in properties shows that they contain, in a condense form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of in grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow heaspaper, which an old acquaintance in palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow Hamilton, his former place of residence, had complexions, that tired feeling resulting sent to him by mail.

He had often acard and read before marvellous accounts of the efficacy of this remedy but as no names with which he was personally familiar appeared, he not only doubted but positively distributed the statements. But here before his eyes was apparent evidence from one he knew. He therefore lost no time in making assurance doubly sure and as soon as he learned that the story was absolutely true, he lost no time in procuring the Pink Pills for his suffering daughter. GRANT ROUGHS IT.

He Sept In a Pigpen After the Battle of the Wilderness. The general and staff bivouacked upon the ground. The night was quite chilly, and a couple of fires were lighted to add to our comfort. General Grant lay down with his officers beside one of the fires without any covering. When asleep, an aid quietly spread an overcoat over him. For about four hours we all kept turning over every few minutes so as to OTHERS get warmed on both sides, imitating with our bodies the dinrnal motion of the earth as it exposes its sides alternately to the heat of the sun. When daylight broke it was seen that a low board structure close to which the general in chief had lain down was a pigpen, but its former occupants had disappeared and were probably at that time pourishing the stomachs of the cavalry troopers of the invading army. Unfortunately the odors of the place had not taken their departure with the pigs, but remained to add to the discomfort of the bivounckers. Sheridan's cavalry had had a fight at this place the afternoon before, in which he had defeated the opposing force, and the ground in the vicinity, strewn with the dead, offered citing climax to an "original" evening | pride of Diverside from its founding, A Mistake Is Often Made In Trying to Enunciate Very Plainly. Many people, and I am sorry to say some teachers of the deaf, fail to realize -in practice at least-that speech is not as clearly visible to the eye as it is audible to the ear, and think that by speaking slowly, word by word, and opening their mouths to the widest extent, they will render the task of the speech reader easier. As a matter of fact they render it all the more difficult. A child in school may learn to understand a teacher who mouths his words in this manner, but this ability is of no value to him when he leaves school. Indeed perfeetly natural, deliberate speech is easier to understand than the exaggerated form of articulation which people are apt to use the moment they know they are talking to a totally deaf person.

People who depend entirely upon their speech reading for understanding others have requested me, when introducing them to strangers, not to say that they were deaf, because they find it easier to read the lips when the pering understood in that way. I have in my acquaintance a young man educated wholly by this mathed wh wholly by this method who travels a Beans. White may, per bus great deal and picks up acquaintances on the steamer or on the train just as people do who possess all their faculties. I have in mind also a congenitally deaf girl of 14 who is not considered unusually bright, yet whose speech is clearly intelligible to strangers after the first ten minutes, who is intelligent on the topics of the day, and whose larger and more conversational repertory is much larger and more entertain-

The Captain Told Him.

An Englishman, touring through America, went on beard a steamer late one night and on the following morning, after walking on deck and looking around him, he stepped up to the captain and asked, "I beg your pardon, but would you kindly tell me what lake | Seeds. I'm on?" "The Lake Huron," replied the cop-tain and turned away. The Englishman looked puzzled for a moment, and then, following the captain, began again, "I beg your pardon, you said '-"It's the Lake Huron," reared the captain, thinking the man was deaf.

"Yes, I know," persisted the passenger, "but what's the name of the lake that I'm on?" "The Lake Huron!" shouted the captain, incensed at what he thought gross "Well, just ask him if he wants to stupidity, and he turned away to relieve collect a bill, and if he does tell him to himself by railing at one of the hands. The Englishman looked more puzzled than ever. "The lake you're on is the lake you're
