Road Bill May Pass.

The Hamilon road bill, as amended by the House, will be taken up to-morrow night by the Senate. Its friends declare it will pass without a change, and that it While a deputy sheriff was escorting will become a law before the close of this week. If these predictions are fulfilled, it will mark a new era in the history of road management in Pennsylvania. The bill provides for a board of supervisors in each township, one going out and one being elected each year: thus forming a township organization in which the maority will always be in office. Under the old system the supervisors' term of office in most of the townships expire at the same time. The result is that for about out of office and for about two months practically nothing done upon the roads. The Hamilton bill will correct this, because there will always be a board of suare not required to work upon the roads, When Calor was arrested and lodged but have about the same relation to roads They simply direct what shall be done and how it shall be done, and see that the work is properly performed.
