" "Our National Game."

Base ball is undoubtedly the national game of America. This fact, however, is not matter for wonder when we remember that within the game are elements which make it so well adapted to our peculiar national characteristics. Skill, activity, shreadness, daring, excitement, all these elements and others are involved, hence the readiness with which the American public receive, encourage and patronize this great sport. Moreover base ball has within it elements without which, long game of constant progression and conseas played to day is vastly different from ing plays when prompt execution is required. He brought a good West quently a game of permanence. The game Virginia thirst with him, and if the reports current concerning him are true, he paid frequent visits to the various places about town where liquors are sold, in addition to "rushing a growler" from hi shop. It is also alleged that Fred consumed considerable raw alcohol purchased for the purpose of removing stains from soiled garments. Anyway, a week or two ago Fred began to "see things at night." He avers that the house is which he and his wife live on Main Cross Street is haunted and that life has been rendered miserable for both of them by the "spooks" that bang doors and scamper up and down the walls of their bed chamber at unseemly hours. As frequently as three times a night for a week at a stretch Fred would lesp out of bed and brandishing a hatchet, would start in pursuit of his unwelcome and unseen visitors, only to find that they had vanished. Finally he permitte another family to occupy a portion of the house, in the hope that they would be more alert in detecting the hiding places of the "spooks." The doors continued to lang, however, and strange looking to begin work. HELD FOR COURT.

Story of the Arrest of the Ansell Boys, cally ill for some time, is slowly improv-Charged with Yanufacturing "Moonshine" Whisky.

THEIR ENTIRE OUTFIT CAPTURED.

Lewis and David Ansell were given a hearing on the charge of illicit distilling and were bound over for trial in the U.S. court, before U. S. Commissioner Reppert, at Uniontown, last Wednesday. The defendants farnished ball and were released. Casper Smuck and David Porterfield are their bondsmen and the amount of the bond is fixed at $500 in each case. The officers who made the arrests.

Joseph T. Crossland, Bart Stillwagon, Frank Campbell and Charles Wilson, were the only witnesses called. They told of the arrest and the confession of Lewis Ansell. The officers went to Springfield township on the night of July & The journey was made in the night where the still had been spotted about 5 o'clock in the morning. After reconneit ering for some time the still was located. It was in a secret place far away from roads and houses and was very difficult is get to. The others concealed themselves in th ashes and waited for the coming of the listillers. They had not been there long when Lewis Ausell put in his appearance. He was carrying a bucketful of yeast which is used in the manufacture of mountain whisky. Lewis was immadistely arrested. He confessed that he had come there for the purpose of making whisky and said he was about ready belonged to him and he also said he had been manufacturing whisky for some time. After much questioning on the part of the officers he said he was assisted in the work by his brother David. He also said a large quantity of whisky was conceiled farther down the mountain in a secret place, but the young moonshiner was too shrewd to reveal the location of house, saying that no family could live the hidden store. The officers took Lewis to his home and there arrested David Friday night matters came to a climax | who he said was implicated in the work with him.

The still was overhauled and was found to be an extensive plant. It was theroughly equipped with all the necessary outfit and everything was in good order. A large kettle of peculiar shape and construction was a conspicuous feature of the equipment. The copper worms were also aptured and confiscated by the officers Close by the still were nine empty barrels. The heads had been knocked out formation against her spouse, charging and they were whitewashed inside and exposed to the sun evidently for the purpose of furnigating them and getting hem in shape for the reception of whisky. into a tin cap in which he claimed he All the property except the barrels was taken in charge by the officers and haul-The defendants are very vouthful

Lewis, the alleged owner of the still, is only 21 years old and his brother is younger. They went to their home this afternoon with their bondsmen. The boys will be tried at the term of U.S. court which meets in Pittsburg.
