over me was not altogether pleasurable, for I did not fancy the idea of playing barber to a dead man, but when I looked at the cadaverous countenance and tangled gray beard of the deceased I felt a sort of professional pride in making him look raore like a mortal being and less like a wolf. I had always been an abstainer from strong drink, but I filled up on crude spirits that would have killed me on an ordinary occasion and tackled my silent customer with a feverish and hysterical alacrity. This was in part due to the close proximity of the two boys and their revolvers. But as soon as I had the old mountaineer shaved the revolvers were laid aside and I was treated with the utmost hospitality. The work itself had not been half as gruesome as I had imagined, and I had to fight a ludicrous temptation to pour barber talk into the deaf ears. He was such an improvement over himself when alive-as I judged by the family lingo-that I wanted to ask him to look in a mirror. I declined the fee tendered me by the boy Jim, and, supplied with a jug of moonshine whisky, was set in the right road and permitted to leave.

"I found it true that in all that community not a man had ever been shaved, and it was only in deference to a whim of the old mountaineer, expressed on his deathbed, that he was made such a curious exception. I did not mention my part in the transaction until I was far beyond that county line, for I was not sure that, a precedent being set, they might not again demand my services, and another salesman has that route. Odd Visiting Cards. No doubt you've all heard the story of the Indian rajah who sent a big elephant as a visiting card to his friend, a neighboring rajah. Cards almost as remarkable as this one have been manufactured in Germany. They are of solid iron, although they do not look much different from ordinary calling cards. Several of the great manufacturers have had iron rolled in very thin sheets and then cut into card sizes, upon which it was easy to print the name and business address of the person who was to use them. Some of the cards are only one one-thousandth of an inch thick. Those used by Baron Krupp, the great gunmaker, are one eight-hundred-and-twentieth of an inch thick. Did any of you ever hear of odder visiting cards?

Old Leprosy Laws.

In the earliest code of British laws low extant-namely, that of Hoel Dha, a famous king of Cambria (the present Wales), who died about the year 950 A D .- we find a canon enacting in plain and unmistakable terms that any married woman whose husband was afflicted with leprosy was entitled not tion, but also to the restitution of her goods.

Uncle Nate, as we call him, was greatly bothered by a whipporwill that came nearly every night and sat on a rock in his back yard and sung his love song, or whatever it is, until Uncle Nate was nearly wild. One night he by awaite, and, as he said, stood it just as long as he could, when he got up, and, taking down the old gun that was loaded with a for charge, he went to the back door, and, drawing a bead on the rock, which he could dimly see in the faint starlight, blazed away. Then, in the pleasing consciousness of a good deed well done, he again sought his couch. In the morehy his first care was to reload the old gon, as there was no tellgrizzly being captured alive, and in ing when it would be needed. After that case the feat saved the life of a fa- this task was finished he started for the back yard to gloat over the mangled remains of his termenter, but what were his horror and disgust to find that instead of holding on the rock he had completely riddled his wife's best washtub, which was turned bottom up about four feet from the rock.

The disappointment was bad enough but when Aunt Hannah came out and saw the ruin, Uncle Nate afterward declared, it was worse than the whippoorwill, and he made a break for the barn, his usual haven of refuge in such cases. -Forest and Stream.

There seems to be some uncertainty as to the size of our great mother. The French orientalist, Henrion, member of the academy, however, fixed it with a precision satisfactory at least to himself. He gives the following table of the relative beights of several eminent historical personages: Adam was precisely 123 feet 9 inches

Eve was precisely 118 feet 9.75 inches Noah was precisely 103 feet high. Abraham was precisely 27 feet high. Moses was precisely 13 feet high. Hercules was precisely 6 feet high.

A BABY PIANIST. A Little Girl Who Has Won High Praise From Celebrated Musical Crit Musical circles in Vienna were interested last year in a little planist whose praises were sung by no less a person than the great critic Edward Hanslick. It was Paula Szalir, a Galician, only 10 years old. She is the daughter of a bank clerk in the town of Drohobicz, and showed a marked taste for music at an unusually early age. When she was hardly out of long clothes, 11/4 years old, she would pick out on the piano with one finger the notes of a tune that had been sung to her, and long before she had any idea of the printed notes would play melodies of her own. She even composed little pieces, such as songs, dances, etc., which, while of course they showed no originality, sounded well and were marked by a decided feeling for rhythm. Not until she was

PAULA SZALIT. 7 years old did the little Paula receive any regular musical instruction. It was given her first by her elder brother, and then, after they had moved to Vienna, by Professor Fischoff, and for the last year by Eugen d'Albert. The latter was so delighted with the little girl's talent when she was brought to him that he took her to his summer place on the Starnbergee See, near Munich, to keep up her lessons. People say that the little Paula's playing is charming, not only on account of her clear technic and the vigor of her tone, astonishing from hands so small that they can hardly stretch an octave, but even more from the artistic feeling that it shows. The little girl has the good luck to have sensible parents, who do not force her talent or try to make money out of her gifts. She is being carefully brought up with her brothbare feet.
