By daylight it was a pleasant, sunny room, but to be in it at night, so every occupant declared, was enough to chill the very marrow in one's bones. No sooner was the house all quiet, doors and windows shut and midnight near chiming from the church tower, then strange sounds, heard nowhere else, began to fill the haunted room. Weird mugan to int the hander road wat and love broke the silence, now sweet and soft and love by as a dream, then swelling into wild confu-sion, then dying away in long drawn means of infinite distress. Gold and Silver Gospels. "The Gold and Silver Gospels" is the name of a very peculiar book now preserved in the Upsala library in Sweden. It is printed with metal type, on violet colored vellum, the letters being silver and the initials gold. When it was printed, by whom or what were the methods employed, are questions which have great interest for the curi ous, but have never been answered.

By the old Saxon law a maiden and latter could be bought for one-half the sum which the guardian of the maid was entitled to demand. A man, therefore, who could not afford to buy a maiden might, perhaps, be able to purchase a widow.

BARNATO IN THE COMMUNE.

How the Diamond King Saved the Bonk of France. A writer of stories about Barney Barnato says, in the Philadelphia Buletin, that there is a circumstantially elipite account of his presence in Paris during the commune of 1871. In the atter break up of all social fabric he found his capacities of a paying order. the craft that enabled the shrewder commonards to realize the money needd to supply the sinews of war.

f the government siege, the president y an unkempt mob. The demand was the bank's vanits. The spokesman flourished a bloody saber and the mob accentuated the demand by all sorts of ferocions threats. It was in the height of this melee that a man who had been counseling the financial deputy of the commune rode up, adorned by a red sash and other insignia of the terrorists. He made his way through the vociferous th. .ng and handed the governor of the bank a large envelope. While the official was reading it the besashed emissary turned to the clamoring nomads and, in a tougue unknown to the officials and probably to many of the mob, addressed them a few sentences. A singular event followed. A dozen of the ringleaders at once began haranguing the rioters. In a few minutes every one of them withdrew. The besashed personage remained in consultation with the governor and when it was ended withdrew. An hour later six covered wagons came to the bank and were laden with bags such as the bank always makes use of in transmond king in South Africe a score of the communards, who had fled from France, were in exile in the region where Barnato had cornered the mines. One day in the plenitude of his gliduence he was waylaid, riding in the Rand, by a company of miners. One of them, by a few words, succeeded in gaining his private ear. This man was thirsty gang who had taken part in the killing of the hostages in La Roquette. He recognized Barnato as the emissary sent by the commune to the Bank of France, and the knowledge enabled bim to get in on the ground floor of the diamond deal. The tale goes on to tell that Barnato, who figured as Felix Barnette, had fallen desperately in love with a figurante in the Folies Bergeres just as the war of 1870 broke out; that he had lingered in Paris, became a member of one of the "Red" societies, exploited the ardent patriotism of his coworkers and succeeded in getting several millions of the cash he had forced from the Bank of France. The tale, whether true or not, is by no means so improbable as the actual facts known in the "A young laundress thrust a broken the "dour" shiftiness of the Boers, and gin and let the rich man's wine go particularly with that astute old fox

Business Women Co-operate.

Last winter a business woman's exhange was started in Chicago under the management of Miss Virginia Dixon. It is simply a co-operation among business and working women to build up a fraternity for mutual aid in securing work and increasing ability of workers as well as opportunity. The business woman's exchange also realizes the necessity of finding other lines of work for many now struggling in the business world who are not fitted for it. Many avenues for employment, as camstresses, visiting milliners, visiting governesses, care of bric-a-brac, etc., can be opened up where many now struggling in the ordinary trades could make a better livelihood. All applicants at the exchange are tested before being sent out, and if not competent urged to take up something else.

HER ACCOUNT DOCTORED.

This Girl Rept an Pypense Book and Los n Husband. There is a North Side girl who has a andable ambitton to know just where her money goes. She has tried two or three times to beep mental track of her expenditures, but this always proved unsatisfactory At fast also decided that she must keep an owner and minute account of everything she spent. She got herself a small book of a rulings and margins and a pliable cover and set to work in earnest. She put down religiously everything she spent, the exact amount, the article and the date. She never allowed the slightest matter to go till there was a chance of her forgetting it. When she made any purchases down town, she went over the list carefully in the cars on her way home and put the amounts on the outside of a package. In this way she succeeded in keeping a very satisfactory record of her expenditures. There was only one drawback. She was forever leaving the book around. Of course there are a great many people who are only too glad to read such things. The servant would see it. The man who came to tune the piano might easily have done it if he liked, and she did not know whether he had or not. A neighbor had once picked it up on the lawn in front of the house and brought it in, but what was worse than all the rest was the fact that a couple of girl friends perused it one day. There were some things which she had talked a good deal about that she got for downright bargains. In fact, after this catastrophe everything on her record seemed to be shamefully cheap. However, she was unwilling to give up the bookkeeping, and if she didn't carry a notebook around with her she would certainly forget something, so she bethought herself of another expedient. She determined for the purpose of mystification to multiply everything she put down by teu-that is, to add a cipher to each entry In this way she could always tell that every item really cost one-tenth of what appeared on the book. After this she didn't care who saw it. There is a lot at the side of her father's house and a rustic sent. One day she left the book on this seat. In the evening the young man who had about concluded to ask her hand in marriage came along He noticed the book, picked it up and looked through it carelessly. He was amazed. She had always claimed to be such a prodent girl, and he had believed she was. Still there he saw: Candy ........... $3 00 Sodn water ...... $2 00

The Angelus Bird. When traveling in the forests of Guiand and Paraguay, it is not uncommon to meet with a bird whose music greatly resembles that of an Angelus bell when heard from a distance. The Spaniards call this singular bird a bell ringer, though it may be still more approprintely designated as the Augelus bird, for, like the Angelus bell, it is heard three times a day, morning, noon and night. Its song, which defies all description, consists of sounds like the strokes of a bell, succeeding one another every two or three minutes, so clearly and in such a resonant manner that the listener, if a stranger, imag-

As an instance it is related that a young man came into a piano store and "Do you sell piano pieces here?" "No," answered the salesman, 'nothing but pianes whole."

The intending purchaser opened his eyes in a wide and puzzled way and went out apparently wondering whether the salesman thought he wanted a fragment of a piano. - Youth's Companion.
