HEROES OF EUENA VISTA. Their Sadly Neglected Burial Ground

The bardy young Americans who left their comfortable homes in the United States more than half a century ago and came to Mexico with General Taylor to fight against the people of this country probably did not think that should they fall in battle their benes would be left to crumble to dust in an unmarked spot in this distant land. But today the dead heroes of the Buenn Vista battlefield lie under but a few feet of earth in a neglected place just outside this city At the time of their busty burial their devoted committee evidently songist to make the spot somewhat sacred by constructing an adobe wall around it. This wall is fast succumbing to the ravages of time, and in places it is completely gone. I visited the burial ground of the dend become today. A tram car took me as far as the pret ; San Francisco plaza, and from there I walked through a dies, narrow street until I came to az arroyo, on the other side of which the faint marks indicating the constery may be seen. Had I not received careful directions I should have passed the place unnerticed. On the side toward the city the wall is entirely gone for the most part, and a much traveled wagon read posses through the place and over the sacred dead. The place which had once been inclosed by the adobe wall embraces probably two acres, but investigation shows that many were buried west of the wall and up close to the ar-

Some time ago the report was published in the press of the United States that the bones of the buried soldiers were protruding from the ground, and that the place prese ed a sickening speciacle. This report was not strictly tree, but it is undoubtedly a fact that parts of many of the skeletons have come to the surface. The ground is strewn with fragments of bones, and it is evident that they come from the men who were buried there. None of those bones is large, as the heavy traffic through the place has broken them up into small pieces. If any skulls came to the surface, they were no doubt quick by taken by the Mexican children who were about and made innocent play things of. Had they ever appeared they certainly would not have remained it tact on the surface long. In the arroyo, through which floods of water pass at times and wash one side of the burial ground, there are also many pieces of bones among the rocks, and among them I saw an untroken rib bone which looked like that of a human There is not a spear of grass nor a

The place should certainly receive attention at the hands of the United States congress, even if nothing more is done than to take such stone as will stay the rayeges of time and weather on the treacherous soil and permit the bodies lying there to rest undisturbed. Wilmer McLean's Two Historic Houses. General Herace Porter describes the surrender of Lee in his "Campaigning With Grant" in The Century. The surrender took place in the house of Wilmor McLeau, it will be remembered. General Porter says: It is a singular historical coincidence that McLean's former home was upon a Virginia farm | per bag. I knew at once it must have ment the bettleground of the first Bull Run, and his house was usen for a time rs the headquarters of General Beaure gard. When it was found that this fight was so popular that it was given an encore and a second battle of Bull Run was fought the next year on the same ground, Mr McLean became convinced that the place was altogether lacking in repose, and, to avoid the active theater of war, he removed to the quiet village of Appointation, only to find himself again surrounded by contending armies. Thus the first and last scenal of the war drama in Virginia were enacted upon his property.

OLD TIME FLYCATCHING.

Primitive Method of Getting Rid of the Newton M. Wilson, living one mile east of town, says a Scottsburg (Ind.) communication, has hanging in his burn an interesting keepsake in the shape of a flyenteber. It is not so curious in itself as it is in showing the primitive methods resorted to by the farmers in end and fastened together by two whang cords strung through matched holes In the antebelium days people never thought of keeping flies out of the house; the problem was to dispose of them as they swarmed through the rooms, making life miserable generally. In fact, the use of netting to prevent their ingress is of comparatively recent origin, the invention of this much needed article dating back only 15 or 20

As everybody knows, flies are exceptionally thick in farmhouses, even where screens are used, and when they pre not they are almost intolerable. In the olden days the method most commonly employed in the country to de stroy the troublesome fly was the use of such instruments as the one described above. The boards were beveled and hung in such manner that by their weight they separated at the bottom, and thus hung in an inverted V shape. To attract the flies they were smeared with molasses on the inner surface.

Thus prepared, they were suspended in convenient places about the housein kitchen, hallway, porch, which generally served as the summer dining place, and especially in passageways. It was a common duty of every member of the household when passing one of those catchers to clap the boards together, thus mashing the flies which had collected thereon. The cook clapped them in the kitchen, the hands as they passed to and from the house at meal times did likewise, the whole household chapped them together hundreds of times a day, and thousands of postiferous flies met their doom. -St. Louis Republic.

"No; I sang in English. The old Zulu was in captivity when I saw him in Africa. I was singing in Cape Colony in my boyhood days with an English opera company, and after it stranded I visited the dethroned African monarch. The English kept him guarded at a farmhouse, but allowed him privileges. I sang several operatic airs for him, but they did not please him, and in despair I tried 'Old Dog Tray.' He liked it, and when told the story he said a dog was faithful and wished me to sing it again. Then he embarrassed me exceedingly by presenting me with two of his wives. Each was more than six feet in height and black as the ace of spades. I declined his royal offer, although he declared the wives would not be missed." -New York Commercial

Some Tested Points In Diet. Formerly a fever patient was forbidden to take milk, while in modern prac-tice it is about the only food allowed, and a well nigh exclusive diet of that liquid is said to be very efficacions in diabetes. At the German spas, Carlsbad, Wiesladen, etc., a very little bread is allowed, the diet being mostly made up of milk, eggs, grapes and lean beef. A nonstarch diet is the rule, bread, starchy vegetables and cereals being almost excluded. Rice is easily digested and an excellent food, except that it abounds in earth salts. PEOPLE OF THE COUNTRY.

Few of Them Seem to Have Learned Anything Noble From Nature. "For the stability and righteousness of our government we are accustomed to think we must pin our faith on the country people who live near to na-ture's heart," writes Mrs. Lyman Abbott in The Ladies' Home Journal, the first of a series of "Peaceful Valley" papers, which picture life in an ideal rural community. "But how many of them," she says, "seem to have learned anything noble from her? Her beauty does not refine them, her honesty does not incite them to thoroughness, her free handedness does not inspire them to generosity—they become narrow and sordid in the midst of grandeur and liberality. They imagine there can be nothing in life but work or play, toil or rest, and they feel a contempt for those who play and rest. They have never learned to mingle work and play, toil and rest in due proportion, and they cease to find any pleasure in life unless they at and on work altogether. Like the

LACK ORIGINALITY.

Why Many Criminals Are Easily Brought "One reason why detectives appear to do something miraculous occasionally is that there is after all very little originality in criminals," said one of Chief Haren's slenthhounds recently.

"When a man sets out to get money by crooked means, he seldom sits down and evolves a new plan. On the contrary, he evidently thinks of the smart cases he has heard of at different times, makes up his mind which suits him season, more than ever, gives plentiful of a good servant in her, and so kept best and copies the plan adopted very closely indeed. "How" Used For "That." Dr. Holmes wrote half a century ago,

"Don't, let me beg of you-don't say 'how' for 'what,' " and "Plense don't say 'how' for 'that' " is the wail of the sensitive reader of today. If an American, he is likely to ascribe the reigning fancy for the sin to Mr. Howells, who has taken to it with his usual ferocity, possibly because long practice on his own signature makes the adverb easier for him to write than the conjunction. Lately the word has begun to infest the writings of English politicians, possibly as a result of association with the Irish members of parliament, for "he said how he was going" is a literal translation of the Gaelic equivalent of "he said that he was going." But the worst instance of its use appears in a letter written by the Hon. Auberon Herbert to the editor of the London News, and, misusing the word 16 times in 40 lines, Connemara's self could do no more. - New York Times.
