Judson W. Hughes arrived in Braddock on Saturday with a bride whom he had wooed, won and married in a little more than 24 hours. According to their own story, the wife, formerly Flora Chapman, was the belle of Saltville, W. Va. where Hughes went two weeks ago to erect boilers for the Aultman-Taylor company, of Mansfield, O. He met Miss Chapman at a church social, she being in the company of a rough fellow, to whom she had been engaged by alleged intimidation, as the story was told. Hughes resolved to save her, secured an introduction and a promise to marry, and the next day the couple escaped from the wrathful rough by strategy, drove at Then he left the wedding ring in his New Jersey. breakneck speed over the mountains to pocket, and when the ceremony was Glade Springs, caught the train for Dristol, Tenn., where Rev.
