ested. Still she persisted. you hungry? Is poor Polly louesome away off here? Come come, you speak

Still the bird made no answer, but from away back in the dusk of the room came a clear little bird voice in Hindoo-

The birdseller did not notice the cry. It is merely the chattering of a foolish little bird to him. But the woman who loved India said:

"Where is that bird?" "It's back there," said the bird seller. pointing to a remote corner. So the wo- in 1895. man went there, and in an old cage she found a neglected looking mahnimah, standing erect on its perch, all its feathers ruffled, looking this way and that as it quivered with excitement. This bird of all talking birds is the most wonderful-nay, in India they maintain that it thinks. It learns, in fact, the tengue of the people, they say, and does not speak by rote, but it converses. At any rate the mahnimah cried;

"I speak the language. I speak it." "Here I am, brother," cried the wo man. "I am one who speaks it too."

The bird fixed one sharp eye on her. "You are little," he said disdainfully, putting his head down in his feathers to indicate how little she was "You are little, but I am large," and then he stood erect with his head thrown back and looked down on her. It said other things, too, while the bewildered bird seller stood by and listened, astonished that the bird had any value or that any one could understand

"How much will you take for the bird?" asked the woman "Twenty dollars," said the man The price had gone up in the last ten

"Where die you get it?" "A sailor brought it here, and I bought it of him. He had come from New York and was going to San Francisco. He said he was tired of lugging it over the country. "He must have come from some place where there are Lascars.

"I do not know. Will you take the bird, ma'am?" But the woman could not afford that, so she called back:

"Salaam, little brother."
