If rain falls once in two eeks no artificial watering is necessary as the roots of the grass will strike deep to the earth in search of water when he surface is dry, and the sod is made respondingly thick. Continued water ng or worst of all, a light sprinkling very day, will cause the roots to remain ear the surface to be killed in hot weath , if the family happens to remain out of lown for a few days, or frozen out in win r. When lawns need watering apply the water early in the morning, and give the ground a thorough soaking.

One of the funny incidents at the examinations for recruits for Company D says the Connellsville News, was the cas of a tall, angular man who sported a nobby set of fulse teeth. The prospective Philippine campaigner passed the exami nation in splendid shape and was just about to leave the recruiting office in the Smith house after having his name placed on the roll as accepted when the examin ing surgeon said : "Ob, just wait a min the. How are your teeth?" "You hav me there," said the tall, angular man, as he jerked the set of molars from between his jaws and held them up to the view of the recruiting officers. His name was scratchel off the list.
