Fred Dupont has excited the curiosity of hundreds of soldiers in our neighborhood who are under the impression that Company I has a concealed mascot of the canine order. Among Fritz's many ac unplishments, perhaps the most remarkable one is his ability to imitate the baying of a New Foundland dog, which he does quite frequently. It is not unusual next morning for members of othe ompanies in camp to inquire where we keep our dog, and when told that we have no dog an incredulous look creeps over their faces as they observe, "Well, I heard a dog barking last night, and thought he was surely in your compa ny." Fritz winks the other eye while all
