The dog caught the bear by the throat and clung fast, all the while managing to keep out of the latter's embrace, which would have been fatal. Mrs. Sheffer watched the con flict from a window, and then, seeing that the dog, gained courage and sallied from the house with an axe to join in the fray. When the chance offered she brought her weapon down on the bear's head, and the sharp blade out through the skull, making the brute keel over, and a couple more blows dispatched him.
