After Many Years.

From the Philadelphia Press. Judge Brubaker, of Lancaster, recent ly rendered a decision which shows that the statute of limitations is to be given a wider application.

Away back in 1868 John A. Gambe secured from the Lancaster county court a decree of divorce from his wife, Mary, on the ground of her adultery. There was no dispute about the adultery, the woman herself having made affidavit to the fact in a judicial proceeding which she took against the reputed father of her bastard child. John Gambe died shortly after he had been freed from this unhallowed union.

More than thirty years after the granting of this divorce, and many years after concluded that she would like to be John Gambe's widow rather than his divorcee. Gambe had been a union soldier in the civil war and was honorably discharged at Camp Cadwalader, in this city, on or before July 15, 1865. The purpose of having this divorce annulled after so many years, as stated by the counsel for Mrs. Gambe, was to enable her to apply to the United States government for a pension as widow of the dead soldier.

In order to have the court entertain the motion to vacate the divo ce granted thirty years before John Gambe, known by all the parties to be dead, was notified by advertisement that the application to vacate the decree would be heard on October 22, 1898, at 4 o'clock a. m., in the Lancaster county court. This notice was printed in the Lancaster Examiner in three separate issues, but no affidavit was made to the fact that the Lancaster Examiner circulates in John Gambe's present place of residence. The court's attention was not called to the omission. however, and Judge Brabaker annulled the divorce and thereby revived Mrs. Gambe's rights in her dead husdand on The letter found among the woman's the ground that the original divorce proceedings were void because they were brought in Lancauer county, where the woman was living in adultery, instead of in Dauphin county, where the aggrieved
