"Hundreds of experienced and inexperienced miners as well have spent a great deal of time and money looking for the lost lode of the Gore range. and they are searching for it yet. This famous mine was found and lost in the fall of 1800. A party of men from lows visited Routt county. Colo., to the fall of 1856 on a hunting and fishing trip. The party made its pendyparters at Steambout Springs. In the latter part of October the party moved up and went into camp on Book errek. In the Gore range of neumining, which runs through northern Colorado. One of the party was a druggist, who had gone on the trip for his health. He knew nothing of mining. He had been warned by an old usiner before he left lown not to be fooled, as many a tenderfoot had been, by what is known as 'fool's gold.' or fron pyrites. So this druggist paid no attention to the rocks, but attended strictly to his bunting and fishing.

"One afternoon while hunting for deer be started a fine buck and fired at him and wounded him. The buck fell, but got up and ran before the druggist could get to him. Where he fell was a pool of blood, which showed that he was imily wounded. The hunter trailed him by the idood spots on the denil haves and grass for a mile and there found where the buck ind late down and then rising had gone on again. In this way the class continued until sundown, and then the hunter, who at Lim. Then he accused me of some was exhausted, sat down on an outpropping ledge of rocks to rest.

"In the enthusiasm of the chase he that not noted which way he traveled. and he realized that he was lost in the heavily timbered mountains, with night coming on. He knew it would be useless to try and find the camp that night, so he gathered a pile of shead flurbs and kindled a fire against the ledge of rocks and laid down with his feet to the blaze and prepared to sleep. While lying there be noticed the rocks sparkled in the firelight. He got up and examined it, supposing it was the Tool's gold be had been warned against. But the rock looked so pretty that he broke off several pieces and put their in the pocket of his buntling cost. Intending to carry them back to lows with him as curiosities.

"The next day be wandered all the forenoon, and then found the Cove pass road over the range and followed it to the egup. That very afternoon a regular mountain snowstorm began. and the party broke camp, returned to Steamboat Springs and from there

"The druggist thought at first that he was being joked with, but at last the old miner induced him to take the specimens to Burlingame, the best assayer in Denver. Burlingame assayed a piece of the quartz and reported that It yielded gold at the rate of $17,000 to the ton. The druggist was not satisfied. He submitted another piece of the quartz to another expert assayer and got a report that it yielded gold at the rate of $15,000 to the ton.

"The druggist returned at once to Strambout Springs, but there was snow in the mountains. He went back to lown and returned to the Gore range the next spring and has spent every summer since then looking for the lost lode, and others have searched for it. too, but no trace of it has been found." - Kumas City Star.

HELPED DEWEY OUT.

How a Russian Baroness Prompted Him to a Compliment. Dewey once attended a wedding breakfast at which the affable Baron ess de Struve, wife of the Russian minister at that time, was present. Dewey had met this famous woman several times before. The facial plain ness of the baroness was quite beyond belief, but she was one of the most brilliant, lovable and kindly women ever elected to guide the social affairs of the diplomatic corps in Washington. A lady who overheard it tells of an amusing passage which the baroness and Dewey, who, if memory serves, was then a commander, had at this particular wedding breakfast. "Referring to leather," said the baroness amiably after some playful remark as to the spick and span pollsh of Dewey's sword belt-be was in dress uniform-"the most remarkable bit of less liable to contract consumption than Russian leather in the world is my
