Mass Meeting!

There will be a Republican Mass Meeting held at the Court House on TUESDAY EVE, SEPT. 26, at which Hon. I. G. Gordon, of Brookville, Judge Johnson, of Warren, and other prominent speakers will be present.

Judicial Convention.

Pursuant to public notice, the Judicial Conference of the 18th Judicial District of Pennsylvania, met in Convention in Clarion, this 8th day of September, 1871, and proceeded to organize.

On motion, Hon. James Ross was elected Chairman, and G. W. Arnold Sec'y.

On motion of G. W. Arnold the name of Isaac G. Gordon was presented to the Convention.

No other nominations being made, on motion the Convention proceeded to nominate the Hon. Isaac G. Gordon, of Jefferson County, and he is hereby declared to be the unanimous choice of the Convention.

On motion the Chair appointed David Eason and Paul Darling a Committee of two to notify Mr. Gordon of his nomination.

On motion the convention adjourned sine die. JAMES ROSS, Pres't. G. W. ARNOLD, Sec'y.

A Card.

Rev. J. A. Hume returns his hearty thanks to Mrs. Minnie Stow, James Henderson, C. E. Middleton and all the ladies and gentlemen who assisted in making up the balance of his salary during the past year, for the East Hickory Society. While reason and affection shall perform their special functions, he will ever love and remember the liberal kindness of the good people of Hickory Circuit as shown to him oftentimes during last Conference Year. A pledge is hereby given, that by the help of the Lord, he will work more persistently, for the accomplishment of good and the salvation of the people.

Terms $4 per year. Jas. R. Osgood & Co., Publishers, Boston Mass.

—We publish to-day the proceedings of the Judicial Convention of this district, which was held at Clarion on the 8th inst. It will be seen by a perusal of them, that Hon. I. G. Gordon, of Brookville is the Republican nominee of the district for the office of President Judge. But now comes the report of the withdrawal of Mr. Corbett, of Clarion, leaving Mr. Jenks full Democratic vote of the district. We publish an article from the Clarion Democrat which says that Judge Gordon has, since the withdrawal of Mr. Corbett, declined to be a candidate, and we have it confirmed by private parties who were in Brookville at the time of the withdrawal of both Corbett and Gordon. We have received no official notice of the transaction, but presume it to be true.

Communication from Centre County.

CENTRE COUNTY, Sept. 9, 1871. "Oh! there is sweetness in the mountain air, And life, that bloated ease can never hope to share."

It is perfectly delightful in the Alleghenies—such a contrast to the crowded, hot, dusty city we left. We are out of doors most of the time, take many tramps over the hills, and down the "tram-road"—anything to be breathing the pure air. A day or two after our arrival we went on an excursion over the mountains down into what is known as Bald Eagle Valley. Oh! what a magnificent view we had. My powers of description are too poor to render a just idea of all we beheld, however I will make the attempt.

Daylight dawned upon our party, seated in a substantial two-horse wagon, well provided with water-proof cloaks and umbrellas, for one never knows when a storm will arise in these mountains. A basket of provisions was placed in the driver's care, and completed our preparations for the day's journey. For nearly a mile we followed a rough wagon road leading through a dense wood. We passed "neath" dripping chestnut trees and plucked bouquets of marvelous beauty from overhanging boughs of the matchless Rhododendron. Presently we emerged into a broad rocky 'poke approaching the summit of the mountain. Ranges of low wooded hills stretched away to right and left. Above reposed banks of creamy clouds, their edges touched with the palest tinge of early morn. Further on and to the left, a ravine widens and deepens; a dark stream partly concealed by intertwining leafy bough and clustering vines, is observed through occasional glimpses.

"Foaming and hurrying over its rugged path, on to its final home in the broad bosom of the ocean. Pallas-like out of these grand, glowing depths, suddenly arises a huge mountain, expanding its majestic form 'till it has peered far into the blue above. Now the sun looks up from behind these lofty battlements where he has rested all night in undisturbed silence; he throws his rays aslant down the steep mountain's side, over rock and precipice, even to the turbulent water's edge where, half hidden beneath its mossy bed, the violet opens its blue eyes and nods to meek, tearful daisies. A fitting emblem—beauty and innocence when most retired are not secure from lurking danger, and waters of oblivion roll unceasingly eager to engulf within their dark abysses the unsuspecting. But the columbine more shrewd, clammers far up among the gray rocks, drooping its golden cells burthened with morning dew. Tall pines brighten and glisten in the glorious sunlight, all nature awakens and smiles with the return of the life-giving sunshine. To the right are green valleys dotted with white farm houses and luxuriant barns, walled in even by these same "rock-ribbed and ancient" towers of strength and grandeur. We gaze long upon the scene, yet refuse to be satiated, and vainly essay to give expression to the heart's feeling. Oh! lovely

"—Variegated maze of mount and glen, Ah! met what hand can pencil guide or pen.

To follow half on which the eye delights." Looking backward through the dim distance an unbroken plain stretches many miles away, beyond which the misty outline of peak rising above peak intercept the view. Turning our eyes (and our hearts, shall we say it) again southward, it is the same interminable misty purplish outline.

"Where 'er we gaze, around, above, below, What rainbow tints, what magic charms are found. Rock, river, forest, mountain all around, And bluest skies that harmonize the whole."

But we cannot linger. Onward we journey, now climbing, now descending until we have reached the aforesaid valley. There is the town with its pretentious white-washed cottages. Near by winds the rail-road and a small uncomely station house stands out in bold relief against a dark green background of pine and hemlock. We alight from our wagon and await the arrival of the train. A shrill whistle is heard and a locomotive with one handsome official car attached sweeps past us at lightning speed. Another prolonged whistle and the Lockhave Express approaches, winding round a curve at the foot of a neighboring hill. One of our party leave us to spend a day or two in Bellefonte. We watch the train 'till lost to us in the distance, then return to the wagon to travel homeward.

Beyond the town we again alight, and, seated beside a beautiful spring, partake of our luncheon, but we do not loiter long. The sunshine lingers still in the valleys, but above the hills and partly overshadowing them hang betokening clouds. The sun's dazzling splendor lights up the edges of these with "intolerable radiance" until they appear in the language of Shelley "Towering like rocks of jet Crowned with a diamond wreath."

Strange that sunshine and cloud be thus intermingled, but do we not often see it exemplified in life. May God's hallowed sunlight ever dwell in our hearts to illumine the clouds of care and disappointment and reconcile us to the divine will of "One who doeth all things well." S. M. F. J.

BALLOU'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE FOR OCTOBER.

This brightly, lively and instructive magazine for October is issued in good time for its thousands of readers to admire. No magazine in the country gives so much for so little as BalloU's. It contains one hundred pages of reading, twenty or thirty engravings, some of the best stories that the best authors can produce, and is just the serial to have in a family fond of intellectual pursuits. Published by Thomas & Talbot, 63 Congress Street, Boston, at 1.50 per copy, or 15 cents per number.

Declination of Candidates for Judge.

We are authorized by the proper authority, to state that Wm. L. Corbett, Esq., has declined, and is no longer a candidate for President Judge of this district. We have not his card officially withdrawing from the contest, but it will be published in due time, when his name will be taken from the ticket published at the head of this column, and the name of the recognized Democratic candidate put in its place. We are also credibly informed that Judge Gordon, the Radical candidate for Judge of this district, also declines being a candidate, since the withdrawal of Mr. Corbett. Clarion Democrat.

TERRIBLE BOILER EXPLOSION.

We learn that the boiler on the Whittlessey & Perkins lease, Foster Hill, exploded with terrific force at an early hour this morning instantly killing the engineer, and blowing the engine house and derrick to fragments. Our informant states that the boiler was literally torn to pieces. The explosion is supposed to have been occasioned by a too high pressure of steam having run up while the engineer was asleep, who paid the penalty of his carelessness with his life. We did not learn the unfortunate man's name.—Pet. Cen. Rec. 12.
