A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

The "Presidential year" is always a reading year with the American people. It imposes extraordinary dities on journals from which the people may usually expect not only the news of the day, but intelligent discussion of public questions and enunciation of opinions. While this is true in a general sense the year before us is likely, in a political sense, to be one of unusual interest;—the Democratle party is breaking up, and there are indications of alliances and purposes altegether novel in our politics. The elections of the past year have resulted in almost an unbroken erries of Republican victories. General Grants administration has reserved the unquivecal indersoment of the American people; and there is every indication now that, as the Republican candidate, he will be reselected President. As an Independent Republican Paper the Constantial, will in the future, as in the past, render an undeviating support to Republican Principles, holding that the good of the Republic requires that the Government should remain in the hands of the party that saved it in the great life or death struggle. In the future as in the past it will speak its own views regarding men and measures, holding that through free discussion only can safe conclusions be reached and the independence of the press preserved. In this regard we can say simply that the Commencial, will be true to itself and its established character.

As a Newspaper, nothing will be spared to maintain the position which the Commencial will be true to itself and its established character.

As a Newspaper, nothing will be spared to maintain the position which the Commencial will be true to itself and its established character.

As a Newspaper, so the day, for news enterprise as well as for independent opinions. This year, at home and abroad, will be full of interest, European politics are agitated, and the American reader will likely find much in them to attract his attention. At home all is life and push. Railroads are being constructed everywhere; new projects are a gence and general news, collected and from abroad.

To our patrons we have only words of cheer. With some our readers we have held pleasant relations for years. It will be our aim to deserve the continuance of these relations for many years to come. We feel proud in the fact that the Cox. WE RELAL wields an influence second to no journal in the State. Its readers as a general thing are the influential, intelligent classes. In a circle of hundreds of miles, embracing nearly the whole of Feanesylvania, much of Ohio, West Virginia and States beyond, it is the favorite in the counting-house, the office, the store and the family, especially of business and cultivated classes. To hold this place will be our constant effort.
