No bones were injured but the flesh was badly torn. At last advices he was doing as well as could be expected. He alleges that be put the gun away with the kicking end towards him and that somebody

OUR RIVER BRIDGE GONE.

Tionesta, and we may say Forest County had not got over the first jubilant pride ever the bridge just completed about a month ago, across the river at this point, when it was carried away. Rains, thaws, &c., had raised the river to such an extent, that it was certain on Thursday night that the ice would go out within twentyfour hours. But no feare were entertained as far as we heard, that the bridge was in any danger. The only fears we heard expressed, were that the abutments end piers of the bridge would cause a gorge above it, and cause the river to overflow about it, and damage all the property on the flats adjoining the river. Every family whose property was considered in danger, was packed up, ready to fice on the approach of the danger they feared. On Friday morning at about six o'clock, the gorge above the bridge broke and carried away the two piers and the bridge came down with a huge crash, and as the ends of the bridge, while falling, scraped on the abutments, huge columns of fire followed its track down, and for a moment, lighted up the whole scene with hellish grandeur. Sorrow was depicted on every countenance as the structure fell, and as the news spread, lamentation kept it company. No calamity which has befallen our people for several years, has caused such universal regret as the loss of our bridge. When the amount town, Lacytown, Cobbs mills, Has--From present indications the hop ville, Tylersburg, Cooksburg, and several others which just now escape our been frequently interrupted for days because of the running ice, which the indications are that we shall have made the crossing of the ferry boat

TIMBER LANDS FOR SALE.

By reference to another column, it will be seen that the County Commissals "for the purpose of fitting up an iron bridge across the Tionesta Creek ference to the Commissioners, and without wishing to dictate to them, we would suggest that it would be infinitely better to have but one pier, and two spans, instead of the three piers. Every lumberman on the Tionesta Creek, and every one who has been observant during the rises on the creek, knows that these piers have been more damage to them than any other obstruction on the creek. Scarcely a flood but there is a jam there, several rafts staved, and perhaps only the space between two plers at one side left for creek pieces to pass through. If we are to have an iron bridge we do not see why it could not be constructed as cheap with only one pier as with three, nor why it would not be as durable. We are in the midst of a lumbering country, dependent mostly on its traffic, and think that as much as possible the interests of the lumbermen should be looked after by our public officers. We hope to see some action taken about this
