WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 12, 1873.

Herrible Nitro-Glycerine Explosion at Tidioute--Man and his wife Killed -- His Child Dangerously Injured.

Shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning a frightful torpedo explosion occurred on Dennis Run, about half a mile below Tidioute, whereby a fellow mortal was instantly hurried into eternity, his wife fatally injured and his only child dangerously hurt. The shock is described by people residing in the vicinity as terriffic in its vio-lence, and its effects were distinctly perceptable at a considerable distance. Rushing to the spot a fearful sight met the gaze of the horrified specta-tors, whose worst fears of a terrible catastrophe were but too quickly realized. The scene of the disaster was a frame house tenanted by Andrew Dalrymple and his family, consisting of his wife and one child, the latter a bright little girl of two years. The building stood a short distance up one of the steep declivities extending along Dennis Run.

The house was utterly demelished, not one beard remaining in its original position. Splinters and poices of wood were strewn around for many vards, the roof was rent into minute fragments, the floor torn up and scattered in all directions, the furniture blewn to atoms, remnants of clothing and domestic utensils were strewn far and wide, and everything about the premises were totally wrecked. In deed it would be difficult to imagine a more complete ruin, so thorough was the overthrow of what had so recently been a happy home.

The first persons on the spot were attracted by the cry of the child proceeding from under a mass of rubbish. which was speedily removed by willing hands and the little creature extricated from its perilous situation. The mother was lying near her darling in a state of insensibility, having sustained dreadful wounds on the temples and back part of the head, from the effects of which she died in a couple of hours. The brain protruded through a ghastly cut, and she never recovered consciousness. Kind neighhors promptly conveyed her to a comfortable shelter, where she received the best medical attention until death closed the scone. But the most appalling spectacle was the mangled corpse of the husband and father, which presented a shocking appearance, as it lay beside the engine house. The lower part of the body was entirely wanting, the shattered trunk, with the head and arm attached, alone remaining. This part of the body had been hurled diagonally against the roof of the engine house, spattering it with blood and quivering flesh and tumbling inte the snow, about thirty feet from the ruined dwelling. The greater portion of one leg was picked up from the waters of the creek, while mutilated fragments of flesh and bone were found

ACCDIENT ON THE ALLEGUENY VALLEY

Scrubgrass, Feb. 11-1:30 p. m. The following is a corect statement of the accident:

The Oil City Accomadation, from Brandy's Bend to Oil City, with a train of oil cars, when running on time near Black's Siding at 3 o'clock this afternoon, a few miles north of Emlenton, broke a rail, and five cars of oil, with the pasenger coach were thrown from the track down the bank. The cars at once took fire, but all the pasengers escaped except three, who were killed. The killed were Scott, the newsboy, Casey, said to be a sporting man, and one man, name unknown. The injured are John L. Hanna, of 52 Wood street, Pittsburgh, badly burned, sent to Emlenton; Michael Kane, Petersburgh, a track laborer, gone home; George P. Riddle, Emlenton, lips cut slightly, gone home; C. W. Kidder, slightly burnt on the head, gone to Franklin; A. C. George, of Rouseville, Pa, burnt slightly, gone home; Matthew Collins, Hamilton, Canada, head and hand burned, gone to Oil City; R. C. Couter Peters-burgh, burned in the head, gone home; J. B. Hoover, Franklin, head and hands burned, gone home; Alfred S. Hamilton, Greenburg, Penasylvania, head burned, gone to Parkers' Land-ing; Harry Miller, a boy, head and hand burned, gone home; J. A. Knox, Astwerp, slightly hurt, gene home; O. E. Singleton, Parkers, slightly injured, gone home; John Whitcomb, Foxburg, slightly injured, gone home; John Delehanty, Tidionte, burned on the head and Tidioute, burned on the head and hand, will go home to-morrew.

The injuries to all of the above are slight, except Mr. Hanna, wao is the worst injured, and it is hoped not seri-

The track where the accident occurred was as good as any on the road. The ties are all sound, and the iron good, but the hard freezing weather has caused the rails to break worse than ever before. The Company's surgeon, and others' were promptly on hand and every attention was paid to the injured that was possible. The coroner is now at the scene of the accident, with Charles E. Tailor, and will inquire into the cause officially.

Superintendent J. J. Lawrence, who was expected here last night, on his way from Pittsburgh, stopped at the wreck and rendered all the assistance possible. He will have a wrecking train on hand early to day. S. K. S. K.

waters of the creek, while mutilated fragments of flesh and bone were found more than fifty yards from the fatal spot. A quilt was thrown over the lacerated remains, and a message dispached to the Coroner. However, no inquest has been held, as no doubt exists as to the manner in which the deceased met his untimely fate, and arrangements for the funeral were ande last evening.

From the most trustworthy information that can be procured, it appears Dalrymple had for some time been engaged in manufacturing to perdoes and useing them in defiance of the Roberts Company. It is supposed he was filling one of these dangerous articles in one corner of his house when it expleaded, carrying death and destruction is its track. Packages of dualin powder were found among the debris, and a small can of nitro-glycerine behind a stump a short distance further up the hill.
