On Tuesday last a Swede working at Hawks mill, about three miles from the place was fatally injured by being struck on the head by the limb of a falling tree. After being struck, he remained unconcious for some time, but he partially recovered the use of his mind. Dr. Hartman and Reynolds were samoned, who upon examination, found that the skull had been fractured from a point on his been fractured from a point on his forchead immediately above the nose around to the back part of the head, a fracture nine inches long. In this condition he lived but seven hours after the accident occured.

Monday evening last, about half past nine o'clock this whole community was thrown into a state of terrible excitement by the report that a man named Horack had been killed on the street opposite John Krug's Meat market. A few minutes after being found, G. C. Brandon, J. P. was notified, when he proceeded to the spot indicated and found the body as reported. Dr. Reynolds was summoned, who examined the body and pronouncced life extinct, when it was removed to a room in the town hall building, and a jury summoned to hold an in-

Drs. Reynold's and Hartman proceeded to hold a post mortem examination on the body of the deceased, after which they testified that deceased had received an injury on the back part of the head the concussion of which had caused congestion of the brain with a strong effusion of blood on the brain, said wound being made by a blunt instrument, and was sufficient to cause death. Other testimony elicted pointed to Wm. Zelt as the person who had committed the deed. The jury found the following verdict, "that said John Horack came to his death at the county aforesaid on the evening of June 2d 1873, by being struck on the back of the head with a stone or other blunt instrument by William Zelt of St. Mary's, Elk County, Pa., making a gash or cut about ty, Pa., making a gash or cut about two inches in length on the scalp and extending to the skull bone making an abrasion on the bone, causing congestion of the brain, and with strong effusion of blood on the brain, and causing a mortal wound of which said Horack then and there died at the hour of about half past nine o'clock on the night of June 2, 1873." Wm. Zelt was committed to jail.

The deceased was a man of intem-

The deceased was a man of intem-perate habits, and had served a term in Penitentiary for murdering a man about eight years ago. It is a singular coincidence that he met a violent death within one hundred yards of the the spot in which he committed a murderous deed some eight years ago.

from boyhood, and has enjoyed the reputation of being a quiet industrious citizen. There was such a marked difference in the habits and disposition of the two men, that it has created a great deal of sympathy in this four or five weeks old, quite handsome, community in favor of the accused.

BROOKVILLE, PA., June 3, 1873.—
The borough of Corsica, seven miles spect of this place, was almost entirely destroyed by fire last evening. Every hotel, store and manufactory in the town was burned. Nearly all the sufferests by the fire have lost everything, not even having a change of clothing, and would have been compelled to pass the night in the streets had it not been for the generasity of those whose homes were not destroyed. homes were not destroyed.

On the evening of June 2d, 1878, the village of Corsica, Jefferson Coun ty, Pa., one of the most presperous and flourishing towns in this part of the State, was all burnt but the suburbs. All the shops but one, all the flotels, Stores, and Mills were consumed. The loss is estimated at $130, 000. All but a very little of the entire capital of the town is lost. The flames spread with such rapidity that saved a single meal of victuals. families are in want.

A DOUBLE COLLISION.

A double smashup occurred on the Valley Road, at Emlenton, early on Saturday moruing. Freight train No, 17 had been divided into five spetions, 17 had been divided into five sections, of which several were following each other closely. At six-fifteen the third section was standing on the main track at Emlenton, when section four came along at a rapid speed from Foxburg and ran into the rear with fearful force. The locomotive was tetally wrecked, the caboose knocked into fragments, and half a dozen oil and to fragments, and half a dozen oil and coal cars badly damaged. Ere the officials had recovered from the excitement of the collision, the fifth section approached, running into the rear of the fourth and repeating the destruc-tion of a few moments before. The locomotive was terribly damaged, several cars were smashed, and the drawheads and end sections of others broken. Means were promptly taken to clear the debris, a wrecking car going from Oil City to assist the operation. In the meantime trains passed over the side-track, which had not been obstructed, though broken cars lay piled around in the greatest confusion. Happily no person was injured, the engineers and firemen managing to jump from the lecomotives in both instances before the shock. The damaged locomotives were Nos. 53 and 59 respectively, and the loss to the railway company must amount to quite a large sum. It has not transpired who, if anybody, is to blame for the occur-rence, which might so easily have re-sulted in the sacrifice of human life. The heavy trains were under full headway, and aould not be stopped in time to prevent a collision, but no doubt the proper authorities will institute a thorough investigation of the affair .- Derrick.

The body of a child was found one morning last week in a ditch, at the west end of Petersburg. An inquest was held, M. S. Booth Esq., acting as coroner, and it was decided it had been born alive. After some search a woman named Wainwright was found, who resided near by on whom suspicion rested. She at first denied all knowledge, but afterwards confesed she was mother of the child, and had thrown it out. The woman has since left for parts unknown.

-The Spiritual oil well at Blyson Run, so long and persistently prosecu-ted by Dr. James against the precon-ceived opinions of the many who have, long months passed, given up hope of seeing oil come, is actually producing through the sand, not oil, nor blood, but something as red as blood, and the spirits still declar that vast seas of oil lie below, and they are going for it, not the spirits, but the drill. They are now down 1742 feet. So mote it be,

He was thrown off his feet and some distance into the air by the force of the explosion, yet stranger the force of the explosion, yet, strange to relate, he was fortunate as to escape with unbroken bones, though his face and one arm were severely burned, and one arm considerably cut by a fragment of the rock.
