TO THE WORKINGMEN OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Letter from an Ironworker to the Chairman of the Union Republican State Central Committee. RUSSELL ERRETT, Esq.

DEAR SIR:— In the iron manufacture, which is the most important business of our State, there is great depression, and we can not look for good times till it revives.

and in lieu of it we demand a tariff for revenue only that will be just to all sections of the country.

They sustain and will labor with the Democracy of Illinois who declare in favor of "Free commerce, and no tariff except for revenue purposes."

They are in accord with the Ohio Democrats who say in their platform, "We are opposed to the unjust and oppressive features of the existing tariff laws, and insist on their repeal or modification, so that a revenue tariff shall be substituted for them."

A sentiment endorsed by the Pittsburgh Post, the leading Democratic newspaper of our State, which says, "the Ohio platform thoroughly embraces the Democratic idea."

The Democratic party of the nation threatens to strike the workingman a fatal blow, and he will look in vain for any aid to the cowardly and treacherous Democratic party of Pennsylvania.

The Republican party speaks with no doubtful voice to the workingmen of the Keystone State. It favors "just protection and reward to every branch of industry, and of giving permanence to those measures which recognize agricultural, mining, manufacturing, and mechanical pursuits, as entitled to the amplest protection and fullest development."

Our chief trouble is that in England there has been such a great reduction in the wages of miners and of workmen in iron and other industries, and such an immense decline in the prices of English goods, that, during the past year we have had a constantly falling market, which has forced successive reductions of prices and wages here, and has made buyers hold off and wait until the bottom would be reached.

I think that this point has been reached and that demand will spring up, and our labor will be employed again with a gradual increase of wages if we can retain the duties upon foreign goods enacted by a Republican Congress for the protection of home industry.

It is enough to take merely one or two items from our tariff laws, to show how important they are to us at this time, and what a calamity their repeal would be to the country.

Table with 4 columns: Articles, Prices Here, Prices in England, Duty per cent. Includes items like Pig Iron, Iron Rails, Bar Iron, Steel Rails.

You can very easily see that had as our situation is it might be made worse. Repeat the duties and it would be hopeless.

The Democratic party has determined to break down this wall, and we are asked to help them by voting to put them in power.

In their State conventions of this year, as in past years, the have denounced protection and demanded a tariff for revenue only, or declared in favor of Free Trade.

In Pennsylvania alone they are silent. They know that our mines have stopped, that our rolling mills have suspended, that furnaces are out of blast, that factories are idle, and that thousands of unemployed workingmen look forward to the coming winter with the fear of suffering for themselves and their families.

The Democratic party has determined to break down this wall, and we are asked to help them by voting to put them in power.

"A protective tariff is a most unjust, unequal, oppressive and wasteful mode of raising the public revenues. It is one of the most pregnant and fruitful sources of the corruptions of administration. We, therefore, the Democracy of Maine, in convention assembled, declare for Free Trade, and in favor of an unfettered and unrestricted commerce."

They indorse the platform of the Missouri Democracy which declares that, "We denounce the present tariff as having been concocted alone in the interests of Eastern manufacturers,

IMPROVE THE TIME LEFT.

A few days are left to complete local organizations. They should be improved by making sure that every vote is secure for the day of election.

Mass meetings, speeches, processions, noisy political demonstrations are well enough in their place, but they are of less importance than a faithful personal canvass.

Now is the time to complete this canvass. Entrust the work to reliable men, men who have the confidence of their neighbors, so that what they say or do may be relied upon.

Special efforts should be put forth to see every doubtful voter and impress upon him the importance of the coming election. There are thousands of good men throughout the country who think that their absence from the polls will not be felt.

Each one says to himself, "my vote will not miss," and thus in the aggregate enough votes are lost to turn the tide of victory in many closely contested districts.

These men should be seen, urged to be at the polls, so that when the ballot is cast not one vote of this character shall be lost.

There is another class of voters equally patriotic, composed of men who would hesitate at no reasonable sacrifice if they deemed it necessary to secure the election of good men, or to save some threatened national interest.

Every four years they vote for President. The old years in politics have no special interest to them, and so they trust to the popularity of the candidates, or the known strength of the party, to secure the election.

These men should be waited upon, and impressed with the fact that the approaching election is of no less importance than a Presidential one.

Grave issues hang on the result. It will decide the question whether the House of Representatives is to pass into the hands of those who have proven enemies to the Republic, or be retained in the hands of those who have proven its strongest friends.

To allow the House to pass into Democratic hands would be a little short of a national calamity. It is true that with the Senate Republican and the Executive in sympathy with the loyal element, the House would be powerless to legalize any dangerous legislation.

But it would possess the power to block the wheels of government, to stop all needed legislation, defeat necessary appropriations, and effectually veto any effort to execute the laws of the land against those who should organize to defy them.

There is no limit to the evils which might flow from the House of Representatives under the control of Democracy. This possible yet not probable danger should be presented to all good citizens, and every man who has the welfare of the nation at heart should be called upon to lend his aid in keeping from the Republic even the shadow of so great a danger.

The nation's credit, its system of currency, its securities, its good faith as pledged in its public measures, its honor and good name both at home and abroad, demand the retention in power of the party that has been loyal to its interests, that saved it from destruction, and that still holds the power to guide it safely through the unknown future.

An hour's quiet talk with a lukewarm neighbor will do more to arouse him to an earnest support of the Republican party than a dozen stump speeches.

Mass-meetings impart enthusiasm to organized bodies and keep them active in the good work, but a personal canvass by the right kind of men makes converts and thus adds to party strength.

Every town should have its Republican organizations. Men of character, those who possess the entire confidence of the community, should be the leaders and workers in these organizations.

Meetings should be held at least once a week from now until the election. A thorough canvass should be had of the voters in the district. The politics of every man should be known.

This can be done by subdivisions small enough to enable those appointed to make a complete personal canvass. The strength of the party should be known. Every vote should be brought out at the polls.

Our leaders should work from now until the close of the ballot-box as if the success of the party depended on just one vote. This is the way to win great victories.

To remain inactive, presuming on the popularity of the ticket or the former strength of the party is to invite defeat. We can not have too large a majority, we may through inactivity lack one vote of a triumph.

Organization, hard work, devotion to the good cause for which we labor will crown our efforts with success. The House of Representatives must be kept in loyal hands. To lose control of it is to again expose the life of the deadly assaults of its enemies.

THE TWO RECORDS.

The Republican party opposed the doctrine of secession. The Democratic party favored it.

The Republican party saved the nation from destruction. The Democratic party plotted with public enemies for its overthrow.

The Republican party raised the means and men to defend the nation. The Democratic party did all it could to discourage both.

The Republican party gave the country a national currency. The Democratic party opposed it.

The Republican party gave to actual settlers of free homestead. The Democratic party fought hard to prevent it.

The Republican party made possible the Pacific railroad. The Democratic party tried to prevent its building.

The Republican party believes in a wise system of internal improvements. The Democratic party is opposed to it.

The Republican party abolished slavery. The Democratic party fought hard to save it.

The Republican party has protected the interests of labor. The Democratic party has exposed it to injury.

The Republican party believes in the protection of American citizens in the full enjoyment of every Constitutional right. The Democratic party believes that Government has no right to exercise its authority for the protection of citizenship within the limits of a State.

The Republican party believes in freedom of speech, freedom of opinion, a free press, and a free ballot. The Democratic party believes in according this freedom if used in its behalf, but denies it when opposed to its influence.

The Republican party has been tried for the past thirteen years by the severest test ever applied to a party and stands to-day as true to the causes of liberty and humanity as when it came into power in 1861.

The Democratic party has been tried in a few States and has been found wanting in the essential elements of prosperity, loyalty, honesty, ability.

In a word, the Republican party believes in progression, and is pledged to the elevation of the nation by the elevation of its citizens. It is opposed to proscription, persecution, bigotry. Its creed is the greatest individual freedom compatible with the safety of the Republic.

Liberal in its principles, humane in its measures, thoroughly loyal in all its purposes, and firm in its resolves to maintain the Union at before all hazards and any cost, it stands the world the enemy of wrong, the friend of justice, the protector of the weak, the patron of labor, the great defender of a nation's honor, and the trusted guardian of the liberties of the people.

Contrast the two records; weigh the acts of both parties; test them by the true standard of honesty and patriotism, and then ask the question, Which of the two parties should receive the support of a loyal people? Who can doubt the answer? The party that is worthy of support is the one that has never betrayed its friends or violated its pledges.

THE WAY TO WIN.

An hour's quiet talk with a lukewarm neighbor will do more to arouse him to an earnest support of the Republican party than a dozen stump speeches.

Mass-meetings impart enthusiasm to organized bodies and keep them active in the good work, but a personal canvass by the right kind of men makes converts and thus adds to party strength.

Every town should have its Republican organizations. Men of character, those who possess the entire confidence of the community, should be the leaders and workers in these organizations.

Meetings should be held at least once a week from now until the election. A thorough canvass should be had of the voters in the district. The politics of every man should be known.

Our leaders should work from now until the close of the ballot-box as if the success of the party depended on just one vote. This is the way to win great victories.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

A short time is left for active work. Is it being improved by our friends throughout the country? Success or failure depends on the answer.

Organization and work will secure a brilliant victory. To neglect either is to invite defeat. We have an unscrupulous enemy to deal with.

A long series of defeats have made our opponents desperate, and taught them the necessity of a thorough union of all opposing elements. "Anything to defeat the Republican party" is their motto.

To meet these combinations require vigilance, activity, and organization on our part. Let every loyal man be at his post of duty on the day of election. A full vote for the Republican ticket secures its triumph, and this means, in plain English, the triumph of law and order over the common enemy of both.

At a Democratic State Convention in Texas, a few days since, Colonel French Smith, professing to be the mouth-piece of the Chairman of the Central Committee, said in a speech before the Convention, that he "loved to kill Indians, but would rather kill one negro than two Indians."

The sentiment was applauded to the echo. Every single vote helps to swell the aggregate. Republicans remember this, and be sure to be at the polls on the 3d day of November, and deposit your ballots for the Republican candidates.

It all depends on one's politics down South. Here is aristocratic old Virginia, with three ex-Governors living, all of whom were born at the North. They are Democrats, and therefore not carpet-baggers.
