It will change both cast and silver. It will change both cast and wrought iron to steel without melting. This will not corrode. It is suscepti-ble of a very high polish nor do acids corrode it. This new ore will temper a piece of sheet iron converting it invery frequently seeing the use of such knowledge. There are certain mechanical rules that apply to almost every piece of work that man attempts to perform, from the folding of a paper to the matching together of two to a smooth-cutting instrument. INTEGRITY OF CHARACTER.

Young men should be deeply imressed with the vast importance of cherishing those principles and of cultivating those habits which will secure them the confidence and the esteem of the wise and the good.

A young man may be unfortunate. he may be poor and penniless, but if he possessees unbending integrity and unwavering purpose to do what is honest and just, he will have friends and patrons, whatever may be the embarrasments and exigencies into which he is thrown. The young may thus possess a capital of which none of the misfortunes and calamities of life can deprive them.

We have known men who have suddenly been reduced from affluence to penury by some overwhelming misfortune, which they could neither fore-nee nor prevent. To-day they were prosperous; to-morrow, every earthly prospect was blighted, and everything in their future aspect of life was dark and dismal. Their business was gone. their prosperity gone, and they feel that all is lost; but they have a rich treasure that nothing can take away. They have integrity of character; and this gives them influence, raises up friends, furnishes them with pecuniary aid, with which to commence once more, under auspicious circumstances.

We caunot too strongly impress upon our young men the importance of abstaining from everything which shocks their moral sensibilities, wounds their conscience and has a tendency to weaken that nice sense of honor so indispensable to a good character. "Integrity of character!" Who ever possessed it, that did not derive untold advantage from it? It is better than riches; it is of more value than diamonds and all precious stones; and yet every man may possess it. The poorest may have it, and no power on earth can wrest it from them. Young men, prize integrity of character above all other earthly gifts.
