WOMEN AS ECONOMISTS.

The financial aspect of the matrimonial question occupies at present the attention of various correspondents of one of the Chicago papers. The Tribune of that city takes up the subject editorially and expresses the opinion which, in these times at least, will be everywhere recognized as just, that economy is the main pivot upon which the success of every household turns, and that its study and practice are not beneath the attention of any lady. Upon this question Dr. Lorenz Von Stein, one of the most eminent of the political economists, has recently made some admirable suggestions in a lecture to the German students in that city upon "Woman in the Sphere of National Economy," which are worthy of reproduction in discussing this important question, although his statistical theories are somewhat at variance with American management of the household finances. Von Stein divides the entire family income into two distinct parts. The first, which depends entirely upon business and capital, belongs to the husband. The second part, which pertains to the household economy, he subdivides into six parts. Four of these, including that part of the income to be devoted to the dwelling, the standing wants, such as dress, light, fire and servants, the expense of sickness, death, insurance and recreation, and a certain sum set apart as the family savings-box for the subsequent benefit of the children, are to be under the jurisdiction of the husband and wife together. The wife alone has the sole charge of one-third of the life economy and an equal jurisdiction in the other two-thirds, shall make the closest possible estimates of all items of expense and of the price and quantities of commodities. Upon this point and its importance he says:

"It is more important that girls should know how much a family with an income of twelve hundred or twenty-four hundred florins should spend on flour and meat, turnips and sugar, than how much nitrogen and oxygen enter into their composition—most important for them to know how much it costs to feed a lamp during a winter, and how much clothing and washing the household needs; or how much fuel is required to cook for five persons. With this supervision over expenses under her charge, the wife is to have the care of the house and see that all things are in order, and nothing wasted or lost.

The good sense and sound philosophy of these suggestions are not to be controverted. While true culture is graceful and to be desired in woman, and while such as Mrs. Somerville in mathematics, Mrs. Hemans in poetry, and Jennie Lind in music, have not found their accomplishments inconsistent with a true womanly character, yet the study of economy is as dignified and valuable as any other. Culture in its ordinary sense among females who aspire to be considered literary, such as acquaintance with the second-hand learning of periodicals, and miscellaneous prose and poetry, does not deserve the name, and is a species of intellectual dragging and excitement which is most generally found combined with impotency in every department of usefulness. The female pretender to literature, ornament and fashion never made a prosperous or happy home. Where the useful and the ornamental can be combined in the proportion to increase the moral and material welfare of a household it is of course to be desired.

It has been lately mentioned that the young ladies residing in a certain town in Kentucky have signed an agreement to the effect that they will not purchase any article to be used in making up wearing apparel which will cost more than twenty-cents per yard, and that they will be economical in other matters. It is hardly to be supposed that this example will be generally imitated. Perhaps, however, the men would have a better right to complain if they would give up some of their own unnecessary expenses. There are two sides to the picture, and it is quite conceivable that as much money is expended by men in cigars, wines, suppers, fast horses, and other masculine tastes, as by women in outward adornment. A correspondent of the New York Evening Post, who undertakes to show that the extravagance of women in dress is not as great as usually represented, says that for the year ending June 30, 1872 (that being the latest yearly report accessible to the writer), the value of dress and piece goods was $20,295,251; fancy goods, $5,139,795; making a total value of silk, dress and piece, and fancy goods of $25,435,046. In the State of New York, in 1870, there were 1,602,210 women more than eighteen years old, and the value of all silk goods and fancy goods per capita to the women of that State alone was only $15.72; and to 250,000 women the amount per capita is only about $100.

Take all the white women more than eighteen years of age in the United States and the value of all the importations of silks, laces velvets and feathers, &c., is only about $8 per capita. How much the liquor and tobacco consumed by the males to say nothing of their necessary expenditures, would amount to annually we have no means of knowing. Few governments in the world, however, would find their exchequers in a comfortable condition if deprived of the revenue which comes from the luxuries in which men almost exclusively indulge, such as drinking, smoking, chewing and the like. More families have been ruined by the costliness and absolute destructiveness of men's vices than by feminine extravagance. It is not true that the majority of women are reckless of economy. On the contrary, the great mass of them are not in fashionable life, and make the welfare of their families their highest concern.

A lady called upon her milliner, the other day, to get the character of a servant. The respectable appearance of the latter was beyond questioning. "But is she honest?" asked the lady. "I am not so certain about that," replied the milliner; "I have sent her to you with my bill a dozen times, and she has never yet given me the money."

Miss Luck was pronounced the best and most expeditious cook at the late Cincinnati fair. The facts upon which the award was made were as follows: In thirty minutes Miss Luck cooked, and cooked well, potatoes, chicken, porter-house steak, tomatoes and corn, and made coffee, tea, pie and biscuit, and set the table in the neatest style.

An exchange says, the best check to an oil fire is flour—generally accessible. Liberally scattered over burning oil, it absorbs the fluid, deadens the flames and can readily be gathered up and thrown out doors when the fire is extinguished. This fact is worth remembering in these days of kerosene accidents.

"Spelling isn't my profession; one man can't do everything. What's a printer for?" "If a printer can't spell, he'd better quit his business," is the line of argument adopted by Joaquin Miller when a cold, unfeeling critic ridicules his orthography.

The three wonders of the world at present are: How fluff accumulates in the vest pockets, where the pins go to, and why when a man comes out of a saloon he looks one way and goes the other.

A private letter says: "If my wife has no pull-back she will get along all right." Not if she lives in this neighborhood. She might possibly get along in the country.

Spite is a little word, but it represents as strange a jumble of feelings and compound of discords as any polysyllable in the language.

A Kentucky editor defends the "pull-back" skirt as the "prattiest thing in dress since Eve left Eden."

Yes, that's so. Take care of the sense and the dollars will take care of themselves.

Natural selection may be defined as taking the largest apple on the plate.

OUR MOTTO IS AND HAS BEEN

QUICK SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.

Our business is exclusively PIANOS and ORGANS, which enables us to give our whole time and attention to this exclusive trade. Thus where other dealers sell from five to ten instruments a week, our sales very often exceed these numbers in a single day, so that we can better afford to sell at 10 per cent. profit on cost, than they can at 20 and 25 per cent.

Every instrument we sell is as good as an agent for us, as they invariably introduce us favorably to all who see them. We have sold and in use

"WHEREWITHAL SHALL WE BE CLOTHED?"

It is a notorious fact that in most towns and cities round about us, nothing made to order is not sold in accordance to the reputation of other necessities of life. There is, however, an honorable exception to this rule in the person of

WHY IS THIS THUS?

Because Mr. Wise pays no large figures for rent, as he owns the building he occupies. He doesn't pay a cutter $2500 to $3000 a year, but does his own cutting, and is not exalted in this line in Western Pennsylvania. He has his suits made to order, and he gets a reduction on ordinary rates. He sells for cash, and thus has no bad debts to make up.

The fare is 50c. from this place to Tidioupe, and at the present time, you can go up in the morning and back at 3:30, having three hours in Tidioupe to select your goods and leave your orders.

Testimonials of Waters' Pianos and Organs.

"Waters' Concerto Parlor Organ possesses a beautiful and peculiarly soft tone. The Concerto Stop, without doubt, the best ever placed in any organ. It is produced by an extra set of reeds, peculiarly voiced, from which the effect is most charming, and the instrument in the human voice is superb. For sweetness of tone and orchestral effects it has no equal."—N. Y. Times.

"The Concerto Parlor Organ is something entirely new; it is a beautiful parlor organ, possesses a sweet and powerful tone in a most commendable invention and holds a high place in public favor."—N. Y. Evening Post.

AN ORCHESTRA IN THE PARLOR.—The orchestral organ is the name of a new organ recently announced by Horace Waters & Son. The instrument takes this name from its recently invented orchestral stop. The voicing of this is peculiar, producing the effect of a full sweet contralto voice. Its effect is produced when the stops are drawn, so that an orchestral effect is given. The case is unique and makes a handsome article of furniture."—N. Y. Star.

The Waters Pianos are known as among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with confidence, from personal knowledge.—N. Y. Evangelist.
