SIMPLE REMEDY FOR SCARLET FEVER.

The San Francisco Chronicle says that Robert Christie of the Protero suggests a remedy for the scarlet fever which he avers t as invariably proved successful. It is very simple, and lies within the reach of those whose limited means preclude them from employing the services of a physician. It is this : Take an onion and cut it in halves ; cut out a portion of the center, and into the cavity put a spoonful of saffron; put the pieces together, then wrap in cloth and bake in an oven until the onion is cooked so that the juice will run freely, then squeeze out all the juice and give the patient a teaspoonful, at the same time rubbing the chest and throat with goose grease or rancid bacon, if there is any cough or sore-ness in the throat. In a short time the fever will break out in an eruption all over the body. All that is then necessary is to keep the patient warm and protected from draught, and re-covery is certain. Mr. Christie says he has been employing this remedy for many years, and never knew it to fail when proper care was taken of the patient after its application. One family, in which there were five children down with the disease at one time, recently, used this simple remedy upon his telling them of it, and every one of the little ones recovered bill." "I will change it for you," said in a short time.

ANECDOTE OF SHE WM. SIDNEY SMITH. I once heard an anecdote of this distinguished British naval officer which is worth repeating. When in his eleventh year -- a year before he entered the navy as midship man—our hero formed a strong attachment for a girl coustn of about his own age, who was stopping at the old hall in Sussex, and the gallantry which distinguished him in after years was not wanting even at that early age. Among the many accessories to the place was a broad, deep lakelet of clear, shimmering water which partic ularly attracted the attention of the embryo admiral, and from the margin of which the anxious entreaties of his parents could not restrain him.

It was the custom of the paternal Smith, every evening, to summon his household to prayer, and the members thereof were called together in the primitive fashion of the sounding of the horn. One summer evening the horn was sounded in the usual manner. but in answer to repeated blasts, no William Sidney nor Mary Anne appeared. The father became alarmed and caused the horn to be sounded louder and louder, but without avail.

The young absentee heard the horn plainly enough, but he did not obey the summons, because he could not. In short, he was in a situation extremely nautical, and if it was pleasurable to him, it certainly was not to those who finally gathered around to behold.

The boy had launched a large washtub upon the lake, and having embarked with his fair cousin, he had, by means of a long pole, set himself well out from the shore. Whether he paid more attention to his lovely com paniou than to the navigation of his frail bark, or not, we cannot say. hut, from some cause of inattention he had lost his pole, and when the household reached the shore they beheld the tub in the center of the deep lake, with not a breath of air to move it landward, its only motion being a revolv-ing one. The future hero of many battles stood with his arms folded, while his more timorous companion crouched low down, wailing with terror. The situation was truly perilous, for a very slight motion would have been sufficient to overturn the tub, and those on shore were totally at a loss to bring the frail craft, with its precious burden, to land. Not one of them could swim. Night was drawing ou apace, and the situation was becoming every moment more critical and dangerous.

At length, however, he who had created the difficulty proceeded to overcome it. When he had sufficiently employed the glory of the situation he hailed those on the shore, and directed them to give one end of the string of his kite to his favorate dog. This having been done, he called the dog to the tub, and thus gained a tow-line, by means of which his first command was safely towed to the shore, where the relieved parents quick y snatched the rescued pair from the stranded bark. The father was so deeply affected that he could not speak. Not so, however, William Sed-

"Now, father," said the young hero, I guess we'll go to prayers." They did go to prayers, aud it may well he imagined that the prayers on that evening were universally heartfelt and sincere.

AN ORCHESTRA IN THE PARLON. - The As OBCHESTRA IN THE PARLON.—The orchestral organ is the name of anew reed organ recently amounced by Horare Wa-ters & S.n. The instrument takes this name from its recently invented orches-tral step. The volcing of this is peculiar, producing the effect of a full sweet can-tralto volce. Its finest effect is produced when the stops are drawe, so that an or-chestral offset is given. The case is unique and makes a hambome article of furni-ture, "-N, F. dwa.
