A PARISH INCIDENT.

In a rural Presbyterian congrega-tion in the western section of Canada tion in the western section of Canada, the people for various reasons, were desirous of a change in the pastorate. A meeting was called to consider how the desired change could be affected. All were agreed that though the pastor was a learned, laborious, amiable, and excellent man, he was exceedingly prosy and uninteresting as a preacher. It was resolved, therefore, that a dep-It was resulved, therefore, that a deputation should be sent asking him to resign his charge. No one was ready to undertake the delicate task. At last two eldets were induced to go and talk with the minister about the matter. They want on their mixing. matter. They went on their mission with no little trepidation, but were greatly relieved by the cordial manner in which the good minister received them. He listened quietly to their det them. He listened quietly to their hesitatingly told story, and at once acquiesced in their desire that he would resign. Elated with their success, they hastened to report the result to the people. All were greatly gratified at the prospect of such an amicable arrangement; and feeling some sense of gratitude to the minister for many years of service, and especially for his ready compliance with their wishes, they determined to present him with an address and a purse. A public meeting of the congregation A public meeting of the congregation was held, at which the pastor was invited to be present, an address was read to him containing strong expressions of appreciation and gratitude for his manifold labors and of strong personal affection for himself, and the purse was handed to him as a token of their continued esteem.

On rising to reply, the paster was deeply moved, and spoke with a fal-tering voice. He stated that, influen-ced by the statement of the elders who had called on him he had resolved at much expense of feeling to himself, resign his charge. Pausing for a minute, as if overcome with emotion -not a few of the tender hearted betraying their sympathy with him-he went on to say that in view of the affectionate and touching address he had just received, so generous a gift, he felt constrained to abandon his purpose, and would therefore remain with them, and devote his future life to the best interests of a people who were so warmly attached to him, and

The reply was so obviously dictated by genuine simplicity that no one at the time had the courage to risa and explain. That minister is still paster of the same parish

A NEW TRICK.

The ingenuity of parties engaged in the practice of defrauding the Government through the evasion of the payment of the tax on whiskey seems to be inexhaustible. The latest device has just been exposed through the efforts of Colonel Hunt, Supervisor of laternal Revenue for the Ohio and Indiana district, and consists in using barrels which are manufactured with the two staves opposite the bung about twice as thick as the rest. By this arrangement, the gauger who, inserting the gauge through the bung, would strike the thick staves, and supposing the others to be of the same thickness, would gauge less by three or four galment through the evasion of the paywould gauge less by three or four gallons than the barrel actually contained. Colonel Hunt made a seisure of four hundred barrels of that description last week at Lafayette, Indiana, in the establishment where they were manufactured. The coopers protested their innocence of any intent to defraud the Government, claiming that fraud the Government, claiming that they were making the barrels strictly in accordance with their orders, and supposed that the thick staves were put in simply to strengthen the barrels-a view of the matter which the Supervisor could not be induced to ac-

A strapping big stranger entered a store on Woodward avenue yesterday, and leaning too heavily on the showcase broke one of the panes of glass. "That will cost you $2," said the proprietor. "Haven't got the money," replied the stranger.

"Well, you can't go out of the store well, you can't go out of the store until you pay for that glass," said the storekeeper in a determined voice.
"I'm sorry, but I'm willing to be licked, if that will do you any good," replied the stranger, rapidly getting out of two coats and a vest and showing arms like joints of stove-pipe.

"Oh, I guess it was purely accidental," said the shop-keeper in an altered voice, as he got behind the counter in a hurry, "and you needn't mind about waiting around here any longer. Here's a car ticket if you are going up the avenue."—Free Press.

TO GET RID OF HOUSEHOLD PESTS.

I have not, says Charles Thompson, seen a bedbug or a flea in my house for many years. If an army of them were to be brought in, mercury would speedily exterminate them; but I think cleanliness the best and perhaps the cleanliness the best and perhaps the only preventative. The common house fly I do not molest, believing that it more than compensates for its trouble by cleaning the atmosphere of affluvia and the animalculæ which always arise from the putrefaction of decaying substances in warm weather. A few drops of carbolic acid will clean house plants from lice in a very short time. If mesquitees or other blood suckers infest our sleeping room at pight, we were so warmly attached to him, and infest our sleeping room at night, we who so highly valued his humble uncork a bottle of the oil of pennyroyal, and these insects leave in great haste, nor will they return as long as the air is londed with the perfume of that aromatic herb. If rats enter the cellar, a little powdered potash, thrown into their holes or mixed with meal and scattered in their runways never fails to drive them away. Cayenne pepper will keep the buttery and store room free from ants and cookroaches If a mouse makes an entrance into any part of your dwelling, saturate a > car, and had managed to say, "My dear—" when she put in to the following effect: "How is Mrs. Smith? Have you seen Tom? What a drendful journey I've had. Why don't you You must positively have that hair out right away. You're smoking again, I see. Have you got nice rooms? I hope you haven't been drinking, dear, Oh, dear me, how muddy it is!"

> The last Berlin Kladderadaisch de votes an amusing little cartoon to the Cuban question and Don Carlos. It represents a most rascally looking Yankee erawling up out of a cavern with outstretched fingers to pluck a jewel from the Spanish crown, while Don Carlos, dim in the distance, dances with excitement, and shouts out: "Alfonso! look out!" There's a fellow trying to steal a piece of my crown from you!"

> During a recent examination of a class of youngsters in one of the Chamung County (N. Y.) schools, the teacher asked: "What is a monarchy?" and was immediately answered by a and was immediately bright little eight-year old boy: "A bright little eight-year old boy: "Who country governed by a King." "Who would rule if the King should die?" "The Queen." "And if the Queen should die, who, then, would be ruler?" "The Jack."

The other morning when a Detroit landlady observed one of her boarders making extravagant use of the milk abs said to him: "Mr. Farwell, milk is up to eight cents a quart now." "I know it," he replied as he loosened his grip on the pitcher, "but you are putting in double the quantity of water as an offset, and chicory and beans haven't raised a cent!"
