HER LOVE HAD WANED.

They came out of a Michigan avenue grocery, carrying a big jug, and as they reached the walk he said: 'Now Dolly, you carry the jug and give me the quarter of a pound of tea.'

'I'd like to see myself!' she replied. 'Dolly, do you want to see your husband juggling an old brown jug through the streets of the metropolis—do you want others to see me?'

'Come along with that jug?' she impatiently exclaimed. 'Dolly, there's a gallon of molasses in here, and we know it, but everybody else will think it's whisky if I carry it.'

'Let 'em think.' 'Dolly, if you love me you will carry the jug.' 'I won't carry it.'

'Then I won't! I've got twice as much character to sustain as you have.' 'Sustain it, then,' she said as she started for the wagon around the corner.

He called to her, but she did not answer. Giving the big jug a terrific swing into the air, he let go his hold and it came down with an awful crash.

'Lasses is nothing to principle!' he explained to the little crowd, and then followed on after Dolly.

How to cook Oatmeal.—First, be sure to get new, fresh oatmeal, as if it becomes damp or old it is bitter. Put one quart of water into a tinued stewpan, salt sufficient to be palatable; stir in carefully, so as not to have it lumpy, three or four handfuls of oatmeal. Put it over the fire and stir it continually until it has swollen all it will, using care not to have it burn on the bottom.

When it has swollen all it will, add more water, and leave it cooking for several hours—the longer the better—and the longer it is cooked the softer and more jelly-like it becomes.

Having the stewpan in another kettle of hot water prevents it burning on the bottom, and you are relieved from constant stirring. It is good with milk, syrup or sweetened milk, or even with butter alone.

Food for horses.—I once came near losing a valuable horse from feeding him dry hay and with nothing loosening. I have never believed in dosing a horse with medicine, but something is actually necessary in keeping in the right condition.

Many use powders, but potatoes are better, and safer, and cheaper, if fed judiciously. If those who are not in the habit of feeding potatoes to horses will try them, they will be astonished at the result.

I have known a horse changed from a lazy, dumpling one, to a quick, active, headstrong animal, in five days, by simply adding two quarts of potatoes to his feed daily.

If very much corn meal is fed, they do not need so many potatoes. Too many potatoes are weakening, and so are to many apples.—Country Gentleman.

A Lecturer once enumerated the qualifications of a good wife in the following antithesis of 'To be and not to be': She should be like three things, and yet she should not be like those three things.

First, she should be like a snail, always keep within her own house, but should not be like a snail, and carry all she has upon her back.

Secondly, she should be like an echo, to speak when she is spoken to; but she should not be like an echo, always to have the last word.

Thirdly, she should be like a town clock, always keep time and regularity; but she should not be like a town-clock, to speak so loud that all the town may hear her.

MEMBRANOUS CROUP.

Well, to go back to where I was before I digressed to explain to you how that frightful and incurable disease, membranous croup, was ravaging the town and driving all mothers mad with terror, I called Mrs. McWilliams' attention to little Penelope and said: 'Darling, I wouldn't let that child be chawing that pine stick, if I were you.'

'Precious, where is the harm in it?' said she, but at the same time preparing to take away the stick—for women cannot receive even the most palpably judicious suggestion without arguing it; that is, married women.

'Love, it is notorious that pine is the least nutritious wood that a child can eat.' My wife's hand paused, in the act of taking the stick, and returned itself to her lap. She bristled perceptibly, and said:

'Hubby, you know better than that. You know you do. Doctors all say that turpentine in pine wood is good for weak back and the kidneys.' 'Ah! I was under a misapprehension. I did not know that the child's kidneys and spine were affected, and that the family physician had recommended—'

'Who said that the child's spine and kidneys were affected?' 'My love, you intimated it.' 'The idea! I never intimated anything of the kind.'

'Why, my dear, it hasn't been two minutes since you said—' 'Both what I said! I don't care what I did say. There isn't any harm in the child's chewing a bit of pine stick if she want's to, and you know it perfectly well. And she shall chew it, too! So there, now!'

'Say no more, my dear. I now see the force of your reasoning, and I will go and order two or three cords of the best pine wood to-day. No child of mine shall want while I—'

'Oh, please go along to you office, and let me have some peace. A body can never make the slightest remark but you must take it up and go to arguing, and arguing, and arguing till you don't know what you are talking about, and you never do.'

'Very well, it shall be as you say. But there is a want of logic in your last remark which—'

However she was gone with a flourish before I could finish, and had taken the child with her. That night at dinner she confronted me with a face as white as a sheet.

'O Mortimer, there's another! Little Georgie Gordon is taken.' 'Membranous croup?' 'Membranous croup.'

'Is there any hope for him?' 'None in the wide world. Oh, what is to become of us?'

By and by our nurse brought in our Penelope to say good-night and offer the customary prayer at the mother's knee. In the midst of 'Now I lay me down to sleep' she gave a slight cough. My wife fell back like one stricken with death.

The next moment she was up and running away with the activeness which terror inspires. She commanded that the child's crib be removed from the nursery to our bed-room; and she went along to see the order executed.

We then restored the crib and the nurse to the nursery, and put up a bed for ourselves in a room adjoining. Presently, however, Mrs. McWilliams said, suppose the baby should catch it from Penelope?

This thought struck a new panic to her heart, and the tribe of us could not get the crib out of the nursery again fast enough to satisfy my wife, though she assisted in her own person and well-nigh pulled the crib to pieces in her frantic hurry.

We moved down-stairs, but there was no place to stow the nurse, and Mrs. McWilliams said the nurse's experience would be an inestimable help. So we returned, bag and baggage, to our own bed-rooms once more, and felt a great gladness, like storm-buffeted birds that have found their nest again.

Mrs. McWilliams sped to the nursery to see how things were going on there. She was back in a moment with a new dread. She said: 'What can make the baby sleep so?'
