

up two deck hands who had been lost overboard there from the "Hattie Barker," also a bundle of hides with them.

In the morning we found ourselves in Lake George, a most beautiful sheet of water, and the largest lake on the St. Johns. Picked up two passengers at Orange Springs, one of whom was a northern man named Bridger, who had been there to bury his brother who had settled there about a year before. The other, a planter, brought on board a pair of beautiful red birds, which his son desired him to sell. The pilot bought them for a quarter, and they were a poor investment at that, as they escaped the same night.

At Welaka, our friend Webster got off, to take a few days hunt. We were sorry to part with him, as he was an intelligent man, and very pleasant company.

We arrived at Palatka about three o'clock in the afternoon. Saw here a park containing five deer, natives of Florida. These deer are considerably smaller than those killed here, but their meat is the best we have ever eaten. Here we took on a couple of Pennsylvanians whom we had met at Sand Point, whom we dropped again at Teocoi. The most of this night we lay at anchor on account of wind, and a lack of wood.

In the morning, Mar. 3d, we landed and took on wood and venison, and shortly arrived at Green Cove Springs. The boat stopping some time here, accompanied by Belden, we went up into the very pretty little town to see the spring. We found it to be quite a pond, about twenty feet in diameter, and some ten feet deep. The rocks at the bottom were covered with a light green substance, and the water boils up through them sufficiently to form a stream six feet wide by three deep. We tasted the water; found it warm, and tasted strongly of sulphur. We thought of Sodom and Gomorrah, and the lake of brimstone.

At Maudarin, 12 miles from Jacksonville, the residence of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stow was pointed out to us. She has a beautiful place to live, and undoubtedly takes comfort.

Between here and Jacksonville we were entertained by Dr. Gillespie, whose residence, he claimed, was in N. Y. City. He had been a very pleasant companion up to this time, but, unsolicited by us, told us a string of the worst "cock and bull" stories we ever heard. He had whipped a man about twice his size, at Sand Point, and had made another take water. He had protected unsophisticated travelers in St. Louis, and had rescued captives from Mexican banditti on the Rio Grand. He had scared a cut-throat almost to death, in Austin, and had killed a man, and wounded a woman in San Antonio. His meat was human flesh, his drink fresh gore, and his favorite mode of traveling was on a blood-vessel. Oh! he was a terrible man! The only thing we feared, as he concluded, was that some one would give him a chance to show his prowess, when he would undoubtedly have cringed like a whipped cur. He was tolerably safe, however, as he was almost gone with consumption, and a person would almost as soon pick a quarrel with a bed-ridden invalid.

Arrived in Jacksonville just early enough to miss the train for Savannah, which train connected with the Northern steamers. Found we could not get a boat before the next Thursday, nearly a week. Concluded to go home overland. That evening we visited Mr. S. H. Hooker, formerly of Rouseville, now in the furniture business in Jacksonville. He is a very gentlemanly person, and is doing a good business. We also called upon Thos. Wilson, formerly of Hartstown, Crawford county, who served in the 10th Penna. Reserves, during the war. In company with a gentleman who bore arms on the other side during the war, he is running a large grocery, and saw-mill, and has a large schooner on the river, which sails between Jacksonville and Halifax, on the east coast of Florida. He is a first-class man in every particular.

In the morning we boarded the train for Savannah. Our fellow-traveler, Belden, was on the same train, on his way to Mobile, Ala. During the trip he had the misfortune to lose his ticket, for which he had paid something over $30. He took his loss easily, and, instead of changing at Jessup, went on to Savannah to make another draw on his banker in Troy, N. Y.

Nothing in particular happened from Savannah to Tionesta, except constant traveling. We passed through Yeamce, Augusta, Charlotte, Danville, Salisbury, Lynchburg, Alexandria, Washington, Baltimore, Harrisburg, and Pittsburgh; thence by the A. V. R. R. home.

We had a busy journey, and were very much tired out when we reached home, but a few weeks brought us around all right.

Our opinion of emigration to Florida, is this: If a man has a small capital, and can make himself comfortable there at once, he could, in the course of eight or ten years make a little money; but we believe the day for making a fortune in four or five years in Florida, has gone by. Last winter there were millions of orange trees set out. When these trees get to bearing, oranges will be cheap. A man who has no capital, we believe can live better in this country.

We are done with the record of our travels, and if our readers are as tired of it as we are, it is high time.

The Forest Republican.
W. R. DUNN - - - - - EDITOR.
WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1876.
FOR PRESIDENT
JOHN F. HARTRANFT, of Pennsylvania.

—If the Democratic managers have done nothing else since they obtained possession of one branch of Congress, they have attained undying infamy as the foulest slanderers that ever disgraced American politics. All winter they have had their paid strikers and blackmailers at work in Washington manufacturing scandal. Hopeless of ever possessing the full control of the government through merit, their only hope of success lies in destroying the reputation of every Republican leader. They have almost arrived at that point of desperation where assassination would be a natural resort. The Hon. James G. Blaine is the latest mark for their mud-balls, and they are bespattering him with wonderful zeal. Other candidates for President come in for a share; but his conspicuous position as the Republican leader in Congress, as well as the fact that he is making rapid stride in popular favor by his successful exposition of ex-Confederate villainy, excites an extraordinary degree of hatred. Like all the other Republican candidates, Mr. Blaine will come out of this storm of abuse unharmed as his explanation in the House indicated. His integrity, his sobriety and his domestic virtues are too well established to suffer from this wholesale dirt throwing. Whether he shall be nominated for President or not we hope he will live long to confound the ex-Confederates; and if he shall be nominated, the spirit with which he will arouse the enthusiasm of the Republican party and lead it to victory will explain why the Democratic managers are so troubled about getting rid of him.

Our Washington Letter.

SPECIAL TO THE REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28, '76
The great feature of Congressional proceedings this week was Mr. Blaine's short but exhaustive reply, made last Monday, to the charges and insinuations against him. His statement included the testimony of Col. Thomas Scott, President of the Union Pacific road at the time he was alleged to have fraudulently paid Mr. Blaine $64,000. Mr. Dillon present President of the road; Morton, Bliss & Co., through whom it was said to have been paid and Mr. Rollins, then and now Treasurer of the company. They each and all positively and emphatically deny any knowledge of the alleged transaction. His own statement was equally positive and frank in regard to the Union Pacific story, and as clear and specific relative to guilty possession of the Arkansas railroad bonds, as the vague character of the hints and insinuations connecting him with the matter was susceptible of refutation. He tendered his best efforts to facilitate any investigation that might be ordered. The simultaneous appearance of this slanders in widely separated sections of the country is decidedly suggestive of concerted action in putting them out; and the manly bearing of the ex-Speaker and his forbearance toward the conspirators who have persistently sought his overthrow, challenged the admiration of every hearer of his speech, and will increase his popularity with the intelligent masses of the country irrespective of personal preferences for the Cincinnati nomination. Doubtless these equalities are the outcrop-ings of rebel vindictiveness, covertly aided and abetted by envious schemers for purposes of their own. Mr. Blaine is the granite rock against which the angry waves of unrepentant rebel's hate. North, South, East and West, have remorselessly beaten only to be hurled back into the seething waste surrounding him, and his prominence acquired during the past winter as the active and wary leader of the minority; his success in staying the flood tide of democratic wrath which has been all the session struggling for the mastery of the House; his signal ability as demonstrated in baffling and exposing their machinations against the liberty and freedom as guaranteed by the amended constitution of the reconstructed Union, have in an especial manner invited their even-met attacks during the present session.

Mr. Bristow is another target whereon has been concentrated the poison arrows of their Ku-Klux archers but his coat of mail was not vulnerable and their missiles have fallen harmlessly at his feet. It was positively stated by their organs at the time of Belknap's exposure that the committee investigating Secretary Robeson had sufficient evidence in its possession to show him up a very monster of iniquity beside whom Belknap was an angel of the third heaven estate. This nauseous dose of their own mixing they were obliged to swallow—Ex-Minister Schenck was the embodiment of every thing fraudulent—"a man of low tastes," "a poker playing ruffian." Their investigation revealed the character of the witness, chiefly relied upon to make good the charges, in a very unenviable light. It was frequently stated by witnesses on the stand that they would not believe him on oath—that he was a very Munchausen. The zealous idiot who betrayed their party press into a premature expression of ecstatic delight over the information that the President had been convicted of an infamous crime on the testimony of ex-Attorney General Williams is now painfully cogitating on the perils involved in running before he was sent; and the democratic organs that raised such a howl of exultation over the information, are now engaged in trying to explain away the revelation of democratic ruffianism and frauds in New York City as set forth by Mr. Davenport. When that gentleman first went on the stand they magnanimously assured him he would be allowed to tell his story in his own way, supposing they would easily trip him. But they soon learned to their dismay that he was a dangerous witness, that he had in his possession facts, which if brought to light would inevitably prove fatal to their party. Now they insist on categorical answers—nothing more. It is only another illustration of democratic duplicity and evasion to save the party from the consequences of the storm of indignation and detestation that a knowledge of its iniquities, murders, cool blooded butcheries, and mid-night assassinations would provoke.

There is nothing of special moment other than that already given with regard to either the House or Senate. A dead lock on the appropriation bills appear almost inevitable. Judge Cartter has not yet rendered his decision in the Kilbourn habeas corpus case and it is awaited with very general interest. Dr. Nichols has not yet made his defense before the committee investigating the affairs of the Insane Asylum. But it does not appear possible for him to explain away the many evidences of his grossly incompetent and heartless management of that institution. There are no new developments in the Babcock case. His bail was fixed at $10,000 which was furnished by ex-Governor Shepherd.

MAXWELL.
