The polls will remain open until 7 o'clock p. m. Each township will elect and return one person as a member of the County Committee for the ensuing year.

Republican State Committee.

HARRISBURG, June 3, '76.

The members of the Republican State Committee are requested to meet at the Lochiel Hotel, Harrisburg, on Wednesday, the 21st instant, at 2 o'clock p. m. Important business will be transacted at this meeting, and a full attendance is desired.

HENRY M. HOYT, Chairman. A. WILSON NORRIS, Sec'y.

The Republican National Convention meets at Cincinnati to-day, and before our next issue it will be known all over the country who are to be our standard bearers in the coming great contest. At present Blaine seems to take the lead, followed by Conkling, Morton, Bristow and Washburne; the latter having been dubbed the "Great Unknown" within the last four days. Whoever is to be the choice of the delegates, we hope the proceedings will be harmonious, and that a platform will be adopted which the Republican party all over the Union can heartily endorse.

The Committee which investigated the charges against Speaker Kerr, on Monday last, made a report fully exonerating Kerr from the charges preferred. It is but just to state that Danford, a Republican member of the committee, made a speech on the report, saying that it afforded him real pleasure to be able to subscribe to the report. It would be refreshing to hear a Democrat who is a member of the committee which is investigating Blaine, express his truthful convictions in the case with the same straightforward manliness. We do not look for this, however.

Our Washington Letter.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10, '76.

The Congressional proceedings present but little of interest, except the eternal wrangling and investigations in the House. On Monday Mr. Blaine obtained the floor for a personal explanation, and before he was through, no man not entirely without howls of compassion could help pitying the judiciary committee. He completely used up the little fellows composing that committee. Proctor Knott must have felt as the Bible says the wicked will in the day of judgment: like calling upon the rocks and mountains to fall on and hide him from the vengeance of Blaine. He was convicted on his own admission of having suppressed a telegram from Josiah Caldwell to him as chairman of the judiciary committee, which proposed that he (Caldwell) would make an affidavit that he never sold any bonds to Tom. Scott for Blaine. He was further convicted of telling an untruth in regard to the appointment of the sub-committee. The scene in the House was such that no pen picture will portray it. It must have been seen to be appreciated.

On Wednesday the committee room was the place of action, and there Knott, Blaine, Frye, and Tarbox had a tilt. Asst. of North Carolina, was particularly in asking that it be stated that he knew nothing of the telegram. On Thursday Tarbox made an explanation in the House, but was completely overwhelmed by Frye, who closed his mouth when he referred to his having surreptitiously obtained a copy of a speech of Blaine's on the currency question.

There is a very evident intention to force a report in favor of Kerr. The committee has bullied Harney from the beginning, and has permitted a cloud of lawyers and members of Congress to do the same thing. No matter what facts are proven, or how slight the evidence in favor of Kerr, he will have a report exonerating him.

Every one of the heads of the different purchasing and contracting bureaus of the Navy Department, have sworn positively that Secretary Robeson has never interfered in any way with the purchases or contracts made by them.

Senator Clayton introduced an amendment to the Executive Legislative and judicial appropriation bill, requiring that the appointments in all the executive departments should be divided amongst the States and Territories according to representation. After three days debate the amendment was rejected by one majority, because it was claimed that it was in the nature of legislation and should not be made part of an appropriation bill.

A table has been prepared by the Southern Republican Association, showing the number of employees in each department, the number each State should have, and the number each State has, and it shows that some of the States and the District of Columbia, are largely in excess, whilst others have very few appointees.

Both houses will adjourn on Saturday until next Friday, to enable the republican members to attend the Cincinnati convention, and the same thing will be done for the St. Louis convention. In fact, I doubt whether there will be a quorum after Saturday until after the close of the St. Louis convention. This renders it impossible for the appropriation bills to be passed before the first of July. In fact, that would not be done if both houses continued in session, for the differences are, I think, unrecconcilable.

The democrats endeavor to strengthen their position as to the appropriations, by declaring that there is a steady falling off in the receipts, amounting to fifteen millions this fiscal year, and likely to be more the next. This has been proven false by referring to the figures, which show a steady and large increase in the receipts, and prove that the republican party is so administering the finances that the burden of debt and taxation is rapidly decreasing.

For the next few days the interest of the whole people will center in Cincinnati. Of the proceedings there you shall have a full account.

MAXWELL.

The Democrats have had full control of the House of Representatives for the past six months. What have they done to merit public confidence and future support? Nothing! Their labors have been barren of any good results. The people's time and money have been recklessly squandered on fruitless investigations, started for no other purpose than to give the Democratic party a little political capital in the Presidential campaign. They will not only fail to secure this capital, but they are likely to lose what little they had formerly gained.
