VERMONT AND VICTORY!

Have You Heard the News from MAINE?

Vermont, 23,000 Republican!

Maine, 12,000 Republican Majority!

The State elections have been held in Vermont and Maine, and increased Republican majorities are the result. Notwithstanding the efforts made by the Democracy to gain them, or at least to reduce the majorities of those States, the good people still support Republican principles and Republican candidates. Hayes and Wheeler will carry these States with largely increased majorities, in November.

—The New York Times is still on Tilden's track. It shows that it would be of little advantage to him to deny that he made an utterly fraudulent return of income, in 1862. Putting aside his gains in stock operations, it itemizes the different ascertained sources of income, which, ranging from $25,000 received from the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, down to $1,000 received as Trustee and President of Balance Dry Dock Company, aggregates a total of $108,00. From this aggregate, deductions are made to suit the Democratic idea, that all moneys earned prior to 1862, but not paid till that year shall be deducted. The amount so allowed is $19,000. This, with the $7,118 sworn to by Tilden leaves $81,882 as the amount of income fraudulently concealed. On this, the tax due the Government is $4,236,46. There are transactions of Tilden, in the stock market, during 1862, which are being hunted up. He is known to have made considerable sums, that year, in stocks, and not to have lost. It is believed that his gains in that field alone, will aggregate about $250,000, in 1862. The proofs of his perjury and swindling accumulate, and promise to become overwhelming.

—It is said that Hon. Morrow B. Lowry has just returned to Erie from a stumping tour of the State and is hopelessly insane.

Our Washington Letter.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9, '76.

A new sensation is promised that has set the gossips agog, and will, if the New York Herald keeps its word interest is an especial manner, every citizen of the country who concerns himself with public affairs. For some months, every failure connected with the whisky prosecution was laid at the door of President Grant. It was alleged that he was in sympathy with the transgressors and was placing every obstacle in the way of their conviction. As the President went down Mr. Bristow went up. The name of the great reformer was on the tongue of every one. He loomed up as a formidable candidate for the Presidency, and the Democrats attempted to anticipate his nomination by confounding him with a lot of mules. He made an unexpectedly poor man at Cincinnati, and immediately resigned. It was asserted that there was much ill blood between the President and the Secretary, although the grim man in the White House was very reticent upon that as upon other matters of scandal and gossip. It was hinted that remorse for his persecutions of Mr. Bristow and the South might account for his silence. The Democrats relying too implicity, probably, on this interpretation, determined to unmask him by means of an investigation of the whisky prosecutions, as they had met with such indifferent success in other directions. Wilson, ex-Solicitor, and Yaryan, an ex-Detective, were the instruments of their wrath. Mr. Wilson ran well for a season, but his memory was defective. While he was seeking to give the impression that the President was guilty, seemingly, he made so many admissions of his (the President's) deportment; was so often contradicted by other witnesses; was placed in such an awkward position by an investigation of his boxes, which were packed up to be sent away, and his testimony was so inconsistent with that of his fellow reformer Yaryan, that they were both dismissed as rather bad jobs. Their evidence had no other effect than to awaken a suspicion that the President had been designedly misrepresented, and unjustly suspected. Every development since, has tended to confirm this impression; and a few days ago the Herald promised to make a startling revelation of Mr. Bristow's great conspiracy against the President in his attempt to make him (the President) a stepping stone to the Presidency.

The nomination of Mr. Adams by the Democrats for Governor of Massachusetts is not received by the Democrats here with any show of enthusiasm.

The delegates to the Saratoga convention that nominated Seymour, struck a responsive chord when they demanded for their leader "a life-long Democrat," and grossly insulted Dorsheimer, a deserter from the Republicans.

Politicans here say that had there been the least probability of a Democratic victory in Massachusetts, Mr. Adams would never have received the nomination.

Advices from the South all agree that large quantities of arms are being received and distributed to the members of the "rifle clubs," another name for the Ku-Klux and White League organizations who have cursed that section by their presence, and brought upon it about all the woes,—poverty, violence and blood shed—that it has suffered from since the war; and there is every evidence of a determined purpose to carry every State south of Mason and Dixon's line "for Tilden and reform," and every Republican standing in the way of the accomplishment of their purpose will be shot down or butchered without mercy; and if the Government seeks to interfere, there will be a collision. But they are not to have it all their own way. President Grant and his advisers are determined that every man shall be protected to the extent of the Government's resources; and it looks as though the banditti would have a rather unpleasant experience should they attempt the inauguration of another rebellion. We may congratulate ourselves that the place occupied by James Buchanan sixteen years ago, now has an incumbent who heartily subscribes to the doctrine that the United States is a nation, and who believes in "coercion."

The letter of instructions prepared by Attorney General Taft, for the guidance of U. S. officials during the present campaign in the South, and elsewhere if needed, is spoken of upon every hand as an eminently wise and happy conception. Of course the howl about the administration with its mailed hand at the threat of the South has been so often reiterated that the lie has come to be believed in circles not given to reading or reasoning. But among intelligent men not one in ten thousand believes the Government has any other purpose than the protection of every voter, Republican and Democrat, in the free and unconstrained deposit of his ballot for the candidate of his choice.

MAXWELL.

—The New York Tribune which from the outstart was friendly to Mr. Tilden, and had much to say in his favor both before and after his nomination seems to be getting its eyes open. At first it ridiculed and made sport of the charges of perjury against Mr. Tilden, but as day after day has passed away and no answer has been made to the direct charge, has become apprehensive that which it first affected to treat as a campaign slander, is only a slander in the fact of its terrible truth. Speaking on Saturday of this charge against Tilden, it has this to say: "It is not the Tribune's habit to join a mob and fling charges of fraud and perjury at any one who happens to be political opponent; but it must be remembered that this accusation of false income returns is not based on wild or irresponsible rumor. There are authentic records which to all appearance convict Mr. Tilden of making under oath conflicting statements as to matters of fact. These apparent discrepancies may possibly be accounted for, but so far the efforts at explanation which we assume to have been volunteered by superserviceable friends are flimsy and quibbling, and no champion of Mr. Tilden has yet ventured any comment on the fact that for nine years he made no income returns whatever. The facts now appear damaging to Mr. Tilden's name, and if he is suffering unjustly, the sooner he squarely faces them the better. Whenever he chooses to produce any satisfying evidence that his hands are clean in the matter, the Tribune will make no grudging acknowledgment of his innocence, but will cheerfully help to dissipate the clouds that have been thickening around his reputation. Now, there have been some vague accusations against Gov. Hayes, pretty plainly invented to divert attention from Mr. Tilden's trouble, which have been gleefully displayed in large type by the Democratic press. How many of these papers will now have the honesty and courage to tell their readers that these charges are made up entirely of wind and malice?"
