Our Washington Letter.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11, '77. I believe it is Mr. Jobling who says that "there are chords in the human breast, &c." And I have been thinking that if Mr. Hayes and Mr. Tilden happen to have any of these strings about their physical selves, they will be given an excellent opportunity to jar, should these two gentlemen accept the invitation of the chamber of commerce of New York City to attend its annual banquet. However, it is not likely that the meeting will occur and the many sharp newspaper articles that have been set up in anticipation are probably doomed to become only so much waste matter. It is sad to think of the little consideration our statesmen have for the chivalrous knights of the quill.

But the saddest and most exasperating thing I know of is to wrestle with all the hard names in a European war dispatch of a column or a column and a half, only to find a note at the bottom stating that "the foregoing dispatch is probably false." That is 'ard.

Considerable gossip has been going through the papers recently, to the effect that Attorney General Devens was to be sent to Constantinople to see that the belligerent Turk took no unfair advantage of the Americans abroad who might be sojourning in Turkey, and Mr. Maynard, our present Minister to that country, withdrawn. Now President Hayes says if there is to be any change in his Cabinet, he certainly has'nt been consulted about it, while Devens says that if the President wants to send him to the land of the Mosleus, he knows nothing of it.

Senator Gordon is in the city and denounces as a falsehood the story folio. He says he thinks the publication stating that he was to have the place, was born of malice and with an intent to injure him.

Western Correspondence. LONE ROCK, RICHLAND CO., WIS., May 9, 1877.

ED. REPUBLICAN :-As peace and quiet reigns supreme over our country, and nothing of a bulldozing nature in successful operation to mar the record of our good. Presidents term of office, we can now turn our attention to our daily avocations without fear that the morrow may bring bloodshed by political contestents.

Times are brightening up some ; produce is bringing fair prices at present. Farmers are at present busily engaged planting corn, and the acreage of this crop this season will be larger than any time heretofore, for corn is the staple crop, and can be cultivated with less cost than any other crop; a great many may doubt this but it is a fact that corn can be grown on our western prairies with less cost than small grain.

The weather is mild and pleasant but very dry. Trouting at present is lively for those who have nothing else to do. One of the state fish commissioners a few days since, brought 45,-000 young trout five weeks old from the Millspring Hatchery and placed them in a small stream some two miles from here. During the last five years the State has supplied a majority of the small streams of this State with those little speckled fellows, and at three years of age they are large enough to amuse our ameteur fisherungemen berbannt moch er fim nameten. men.

Our hopgrowers are at present setting the poles in their yards, as this county is considered the best adapted for this crop of any locality in the west; the result is that many of our farmers have turned their attention te

A prominent newspaper correspondent who has just returned from Ohio, and who endorses the policy of the administration, says he was surprised at the opposition he found to it in the stave and heading bolts at the follow-Buckeye State. He is apprehensive ing prices: that the result of it will be that Ohio will be lost to the Republicans, principally on account of the dissatisfaction among the Republicans there. I can scarcely believe, however, but that his fears are unfounded.
