Then we went at it again, and at half-past four we drove up to Kingston Point, where the steamer lay all loaded, but waiting for the Albany mail.

"'Would like to make that $2,000, gentlemen,' said Captain Bean, 'but my orders are not to leave till I get the Albany mail, and I cannot accept.'

"They seemed much disappointed, but said 'it couldn't be expected,' and they made themselves agreeable to everybody about. They paid me the 8600 promised, gave me $300 for the lost horses, and gave my driver and men over $100 each. We waited until the stage came; the mails and passengers were transferred; away went the boat in a hurry. Then we rode leisurely back to Albany, it being a sne night, back to Albany, it being a sine night, but before we got there we met the mounted police furiously soming after our passengers, and the dead nobleman's bogus sons.
