"We cannot too strongly urge the necessity of proper care of farm implements. This care especially consists in housing, painting and repairing; in return for which we have tools that | Only One Price for Cash, and a low one. are better, that will wear longer, and that will be less liable to break as well as vastly more convenient to use, the total result of which is economy.

"Every farmer should make it a rule to keep his tools under cover when not in use. There are always corners enough in a barn where hoes, shovels, plows and harrows can be stored away at any time without being in the way. At a trifling expense a shed can be built, in which may be kept the wagons, car's, mowing machines, etc., it will take no longer to run them under the building than to leave them in the field.

"Furthermore, every farmer should see that his tools are kept in good order. When any part of an implement gets out of place or is broken, the adjoining parts sustain greater wear and in a short time are beyond repairing. Nuts, bolts and serews become loose, admitting dust and gravel and causing unnecessary friction, which is more wearing than actual work. As soon as any part becomes weak it should be repaired at once. We once knew a thrifty farmer who made it a rule to repair everything before it was broken, and we presume that he has thereby saved many vexations and delays. Another important matter not to be overlooked is the use of paint; a good coat of brown paint, that costs but little, will exclude the moisture to a considerable extent and prevent delay.

"Proper care and a neat look will insure better tools and better handling, since every one prefers to use an implement that is bright and polished to one that is rusty and weather beaten, and in the matter of service the o, ne will last until litearly worn out, whi,'e the other is liable to give out when 'east expected.

"It has been stated that implements not made or good material as formerly and that ma my of them are too light for service; but , "e believe these, especially the former to be mistaken ideas. The material is of small consequence compared with the treatment hat good they receive. It is true steel and good wood work is better than poor; but rust and decay win. stroy either. Many of the tought. and best varieties of timber when exposed to the weather, will decay quite as soon as the poorest.

"Economy is a word which we have seen used in almost every journal that we have read for the past three years, and doubtless every shiftless farmer in the country thinks he is economical, but when we pass their houses and see expensive implements and wagons standing out in the hot sun and soaking rain, we are prone to remark that with such at least economy is a farce."

Joe and his friend were both strangers, and walked around a while to take in the situation. Joe finally concluded that it was the cheapest fair he had ever struck, and proposed to his companion that they buy out the whole shebang. The proposition was accepted. They started ateach side of the door and went around until they met in the middle, buying and paying for everything on the tables. Then the fon commenced. Prizes were announced for the prettiest girl in the room and for the ugliest girl; girls with litthe feet and girls with big feet received premiums. The strangers were the center of attraction; they were the observed of all observers. After turning the heads of all the girls and making all the boys desperately jealous, they gave the remainder of the goods back to the church, and left as mysteriously as they came, simply saying in explanation that they were mining speculators from Nevada.

The following is an extract from a description of Vineland, published in the New York Tribune, by the well-known Agriculturist, Solon Robinson:

All the farmers were of the "well to do" sort, and some of them, who have turned their attention to fruits and market gardening, have grown rich. The soil is loam, varying from sandy to clayey, and surface gently undulating, intersected with small streams and occasional wet meadows in which deposts of peat or muck are stored, sufficient to fortilize the whole upland surface of the latest pear or handed of its face, after it has been exhausted of its natural fertility.

It is certainly one of the most extensive fertile tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming, that we know of this side of the West-ern prairies. We found some of the old-est farms apparently just as profitably productive as when first cleared of forest lifty or a hundred years ago.

The geologist would soon discover the cause of this continued fertility. The of the tertiary formation; and this mari

NEW REVISED EDITION. ENTIRELY REWRITTEN BY THE

ABLEST WRITERS ON

EVERY SUBJECT. Printed from New Type, and illustrated with severial Thousand Engravings and Mays,

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLO-PÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time, the wide circulation which 14 has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled.

issue a new edition entitled

Within the last ten years the progress of less has made a second of knowldge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own coun-try, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has hap-pily been ended, and a new course of com-mercial and industrial activity has been commenced. Large accessions to our

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's month, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which eught now to take their place in

PERMANENT AND AUTHENTIC HISTORY.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts as well as to tions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinet and original record of the progress of POLITICAL AND HISTORICAL EVENTS. The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.
