guished lights in literature, art and law.

In the car with Mr. Heller and his friend were some half-dozen people, among them an estimable old lady who had evidently been doing her marketing in Boston, for she-carried a basket on her lap, containing groceries, vegetables, and, in particular, a large quantity of eggs. Mr. Heller sat down beside the old lady, and for a few instants nothing of moment happened. Mr. Heller then stooped down and picked up two eggs from the floor, and handing them to the old lady, remarked that she was losing them. The old lady, a little surprised, thanked the polite gentleman, and everything again relapsed into silence. In a few gabbled all together, and put on the airs moments a repetition of the scene. The old lady wondered how it was, she hadn't noticed the eggs fall, and wondered still more when Mr. Heller a third time puzzled the old lady that she got up, and | having recently concluded his computalady and remarked audibly :

"I saw you do that. It's wrong. this way.

"You shouldn't have taken those

The old lady turned toward the gentleman, and looked at him very suspiciously, while the other answered with great asperity :

"Are you mad, sir? I took no eggs,' "But I saw you," said Heller.

By this time the attention of the other conversation.

"It is false !" exclaimed the one accused, evidently feeling very uncomfort-

"That is too much, sir, when I say I saw you," said Heller, and with that he rose, and, passing before the old lady, who looked half frightened and, half angry, stood before the gentleman accused.

"What do you call that?" said Helfrom the other pocket.

The gentleman from whose pockets the eggs had been taken, rose from his seat and stood opposite Heller, saying : "I don't understand this; perhaps we can find some more." "No doubt I can," said Heller, put-him and pretty soon everybody in the car was laughing, the old lady being the only one who remained in ignorance that this was one of Mr. Heller's jokes.

By and by the car reached Cambridge, and Mr. Heller and his friend got off. As they were walking along, the friend said he thought he had noticed that Mr. Heller had a pin in his scarf,

"So I have," said Mr. Heller, and he felt for the pin, but no pin was there. "Could I have put it in my pocket?" and he searched in his vest, "Hallo!" he exclaimed, "where's the money?" and he nervously sought through all his pockets, "Sold by Jove!"

Mr. Heller was minus a cameo scarfpin, $28 in bills, and a gold match box, He had for once struck the wrong man, who, while Heller had been going through him, had been quietly going through Heller. Strange to say, when Mr. Heller got back to Boston, he mentioned the incident to nobody and enjoined strict secresy on his friend. All of which shows that it takes two to play foke, and that biters are some times Instinct of Wild Geese.

The St. Louis Republican says: "Dr. Lankford, who returned a day or two since from the southeastern part of the state, mentions the following curious fact in natural history. He gives the statement on the authority of Mr. W. R mith, a leading farmer and miller, living cellent rolls, biscnits, bread, etc.

near Morley, in Scott county, Mo. About a year ago Mr. Smith captured two young wild geese, and raised them with the balance of his domestic goslings, The wild ones became quite tame, and took kindly to the changes of civilized life, They adapted their habits to the ordinary delights of the barnyard, and swam in the pond with the tame geese, without showing a disposition to go on a wild-goose chase. About the 4th of November, the weather began to change, and after being domesticated some eight months, the wild fellows, prompted by instinct to seek a more sunny clime on the approach of winter, spread their wings to the breeze and started on a migratory tour, flying southward, Their departure was natural and to be expected, After an absence of two months, early in January, great was Mr. Smith's surprise to find, on getting up one morning, that the two wild geese had returned to their old haunts on his farm. They not only returned, but eleven more wild geese came with them as visitors, which they piloted safely from some southern bayon. The new comers made themselves at home, and were fed and fondled by the children. They came up to the mill at feeding time to get their rations, and of civilized geese who have had a good moral training."

It is possible the Scottish astronomer-royal with passengers in the car was directed to the Edinburg steeps without even a spray drop reaching us.
